Storms Batter The East

Rain Breaks Heat But Winds Cause Terrific Damage

(By The Associated Press)

Vicious thunderstorms Saturday brought hail, torrential rains and winds up to 100 miles-an-hour in the wake of a squall line that reached from Illinois to Virginia.

While the cooling—and devastating—storms cut at broad swath, a June heat wave gripped the southern and central parts of the nation.

At Danville, Va., winds reached gusts up to 100 miles an hour and hail fell inches deep in some sections. More than an inch of rain fell on the area in a 15-minute torrent that uprooted trees and knocked out electrical and telephone service.

A three-week drought was broken by a severe thunderstorm at Nashville, Tenn. Winds up to 80 miles an hour stirred up blinding dust and caused heavy damage as a squall line moved from southwestern Kentucky to the Southern Cumberland Plateau.

Two Hurt In Kentucky

Winds unroofed the County Courthouse at Hopkinsville, Ky., and flying debris injured Deputy Jailer Mack Witherspoon and his 4-year-old son, Johnny.

To the north, near Eaton, O., wind from a funnel-shaped cloud destroyed several farm buildings.

Earlier Saturday, wind and rain storms struck from Northern Indiana across Illinois to St. Louis. Broken electric lines and minor damage to buildings were reported in at least eight Illinois cities, including Peoria and Decatur.

The thermometer dropped 17 degrees from a noontime peak of 91 when a squall moved into St. Louis. Mt. Vernon, Ill., radio station, WMI was cut off the air by a power failure.

Hail stones piled up two feet deep at Bath in western New York where an electrical storm damaged buildings and power lines. No injuries were reported.

Thunderstorms descended on Cincinnati and Louisville as precipitation moved into the Ohio River Valley. Showers extended through Pennsylvania and eastward to New York City. Rain also pelted the Upper Missouri Valley and parts of Southern Indiana and Illinois.

Deaths Rise To 12

Deaths from oppressive heat rose to 12 with a report of two victims at Davenport, Ia. The week-long hot weather spell already has claimed the lives of three in Missouri, three in Tennessee and four in Kansas where temperatures again today reached the 100s.

The mercury went into the 90s in the southeast and Gulf states.

It was cloudy along the northern fringe of the nation. New England and the Pacific Northwest had temperatures in the cool 40s.

Weatherman Sees Chance For End Of Heat Here

KANSAS CITY, June 13 (AP) — Another blast of the early June heat wave seared Missouri today.

The mercury soared to 103 degrees here, breaking by five degrees the previous high mark for the date. It went to 102 at Joplin and was right under the century mark at Springfield.

But there were some hopes of relief in a cold front moving out of the northwest. This condition is expected to be preceeded by showers and thundershowers in the northwest tonight, followed by a turn to cooler by Sunday night for the northwest and northern portions.

At St. Louis temperatures dropped 17 degrees within an hour as a line squall swept the area. Winds up to 40 miles an hour caused widespread but minor damage. The top for the day there was 91 at noon.

The mercury hit 103 here shortly after 1 p. m., but began to drop a short time under a thin cloud cover. At St. Joseph a high of 95 was recorded, but by 4 p. m. a heavy overcast had dropped the mercury five degrees.

Springfield's 99 was the third straight day for that reading.

C. C. Williford, weather observer there, said the area needs rain within the next few days to have the corn crop. He said the leaves are beginning to curl and twist. A few more days of high temperatures, he said, will cause the crop to burn.

2 From Fristoe Hurt In Wreck Near Warsaw

Two residents of Fristoe are in Bothwell Hospital as a result of a one-car accident, south of Warsaw on Highway 65 about 10 p.m. Saturday. They are Fred Bybee, 22 and C. Y. Jones, about 45.

Jones was cut on the scalp. It required a number of stitches to close the wound. He also suffered minor cuts and bruises. Bybee had an injury to his left arm and shoulder and bruises. They were treated by Dr. Carl Siegel.

The car, a 1940 Pontiac 5-passenger coupe, was driven by Kenneth Palmer, Fristoe, who told State Troopers that he lost control of the car as it rounded a curve. The car rolled over several times and was demolished.

The trio had been in Sedalia and were returning to their homes when the accident occurred.

State Fair Rodeo Closes-Up With Big Award Show Today

The third annual State Fair World Champion Rodeo, sponsored by the Sedalia Junior Chamber of Commerce, comes to an end this afternoon when the fourth and final contest will be held. Today's contest will get underway at 2 p.m. with the same 50 cowboys, riding, roping and wrestling steers for the big points of the rodeo.

Saturday night rain which started about 9 o'clock didn't seem to dampen the activity of the rodeo as the contests continued without a letup. So determined were the cowboys on going through the major events, that the rain decided to give up. Just enough rain fell to settle the dust on the race track in front of the grandstand where the rodeo is being held.

Today the winner of the major events win double the money they did or could have won during each contest the past three nights.

Red Wimer, Vinita, Okla., is holding his own in the bareback and saddle bronc riding. He has placed 1,2 and 4 in the bareback contests and placed 1-2 in saddle bronc. Dick Herold also has a 1-2 in saddle bronc.

Willard Combs, Checotah, Okla., seems to be favored in the bulldogging with two firsts and a third while Stan Barent, Seneca has a first and a third.

In bull riding Walter Plugge, Bartlett, Neb., has won first, second and third while Spike Bronson, Pierre, S. D., has a first and third to his credit and Billy Morris, Dearborn, Mich., a first.

The standing of the cowboys at the end of the four-day contests in Sedalia will be filed with the Rodeo Cowboys Association to be figured in the final standings for the 1953 season. The champions are picked by the number of points collected at various rodeo contests throughout the country, and figured on percentages.

The stock, Saturday night, seemed to liven up considerably with the coolness brought by the rain. More spirit was noticed in the broncs, the steers. Les Winget, Inman, Kan., manager of the rodeo, said Saturday night that he anticipated plenty of action and excitement, Sunday afternoon as the cowboys battle their way on the animals to gain their final points of the rodeo.

The afternoon performance will be opened with a grand entry of cowboys riding their mounts supplemented by many members of saddle clubs in this area especially the State Fair Saddle Club of Sedalia.

Extra volunteers have been added for this afternoon to handle the anticipated traffic. The gates to the fair grounds will be opened about 12:30, so early arrivals will have plenty of time to get upon the grounds and get choice seats.

Benson Seeks Farmers' Aid On Problems

Secretary Proposes 'Grass Roots' Poll To Provide Way Out

WASHINGTON, June 13 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson today called for a "grass roots" poll of farmers on how the government should tackle the problems of declining farm income, shrinking exports and mounting crop surpluses.

The American Farm Bureau Federation, the National Grange and the National Farmers Union were asked to take such a poll between July 1 and Dec. 31.

Results would be laid before Congress when it starts writing new farm legislation next year.

Benson has declared in recent speeches that present farm programs are "not good enough." He said they create surpluses, price U. S. farm products out of markets and threaten government regimentation of farmers.

The poll-taking was placed in the hands of two friendly farm groups and one that has been hostile. Officials of the Farm Bureau and the Grange have generall applauded Benson's criticism of present programs, but the Farmers Union has defended them.

A Benson aide said the Farm Bureau and the Grange have accepted Benson's bid for aid in getting the farm viewpoint, but the Farmers Union has not yet done so.

The suggested poll is counterpart to a "farm family policy review" which former Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan made two years ago through the department's own field agencies.

That poll, which turned up generally favorable comment for present programs and for some new policies advanced by Brannan, drew sharp criticism from some farm groups, particularly officials of the Farm Bureau, and political foes of Brannan in Congress.

Critics contended that the Brannan poll improperly used public funds to build up "farm pressure" for policies advocated by the Truman administration. The Farmers Union, on the other hand, lauded Brannan for making the poll.

Showdown Appears Imminent Between Rhee, UN Command

MUNSAN, Sunday, June 14 (AP)—A showdown seemed imminent today between the U. N. Command and South Korea's President Syngman Rhee—in a race to end his opposition and get him in line ahead of the signing of a truce with the Communists at Panmunjom.

But even as developments pointed toward a quick armistice, the 78-year-old South Korean leader fired a new blast. He denounced the impending truce as a "flagrant sellout" and called for an immediate mutual security pact with the United States to placate his people.

Washington sources Saturday saw in Rhee's statement another indication that he is trying to wring the last concession possible without pressing his opposition to the point of bloodshed. Top U. S. officials estimated the negotiated armistice will come early next week.

In Los Angeles, Sen. William F. Knowland, acting floor leader in the U. S. Senate, spoke out against a four power meeting with the Soviet Union until Korea is united. He said, "it seems to me if the Republic of Korea and President Syngman Rhee had assurances of this kind there might be less difficulty for them to accept the terms of the cease-fire armistice."

In the streets of South Korean cities, government-inspired crowds staged anti-truce demonstrations before barbed wire barricades for the fifth straight day Saturday. Rocks were hurled at U. S. equipment in Pusan.

U. S. soldiers fired 10 to 15 shots from carbines over the heads of the youthful demonstrators at Pusan.

The U. N. Command appeared to have only a few days left to win over Rhee before there is agreement at Panmunjom.

Red and Allied staff officers, meeting there again at 11 a.m. today (8 p. m. Saturday, CST), worked in secrecy but were reported making good progress.

Underscoring this, two members of the Allied truce team who had been in Japan flew back to Korea Saturday. The arrival of Rear Adm. John C. Daniel and Brig. Gen. Egbert Glenn at Munsan, the U. N. base camp, brought the truce team to four of its five members.

The fifth, South Korean Maj. Gen. Choi Duk Shin, has boycotted all truce sessions since May 25 in protest of the truce terms.

When the truce teams recessed Tuesday after settling all major differences, it was made clear at that time that the top delegates would be called back only for higher policy actions—such as ratifying and signing the formal agreement.

Staff officers have been reported working on details of the war prisoner exchange and settlement of the line on which to set up a 2½ mile buffer zone. Peiping Red radio said Saturday that the staff officers were running over the entire 63-item agreement.

Ellis O. Briggs, U. S. ambassador to Korea, stayed where he could keep close contact with Rhee for the relay of any new word from Washington.

The most violently outspoken Korean leader against a truce, acting Prime Minister Pyun Yung Tai, said Saturday his country "cannot and does not accept" the impending armistice.

"Foreign forces can . . . if they so wish, agree to any armistice and disengage themselves from Korea," he said in a statement.

"We Koreans cannot disengage ourselves from Korea . . . if we let them have an armistice we ourselves cannot accept, it is only fair that they should not force it upon us."

The U. N. Field commander in Korea, Lt. Gen. Maxwell E. Taylor, was closeted Saturday night with Rhee's top military man, Gen. Paik Sun Yup. It would be up to Paik, the South Korean Army chief of staff recently recalled from the United States, to implement any "go-it-alone" military plan Rhee might order.

Russia Empties Prisons

Reds Alter Policy In Eastern Germany To Combat Adenauer

BERLIN, June 13 (AP)—Russia turned the clock further back today on the sovietization of East Germany. Hundreds of prisoners were freed and some more Communist policies were scrapped in the Kremlin's occupation zone.

Red spokesmen said the big objective was to defeat West Germany's pro-American Chancellor, Konrad Adenauer, who is up for re-election this summer, and to prepare for the unification of Germany.

East German Reds began emptying jails of non-Communist citizens who had been sentenced since last November to terms as long as three years for alleged crimes against state property.

Russia's official newspaper in Berlin, Taegliche Rundschau, said editorially that the former Soviet Control Commission, headed by Gen. Vassily Chuikov, had been "to a certain degree responsible for errors" which frightened 230,000 East Germans into fleeing westward this year.

Police Army to Release 40,000

East Germany's police army of 125,000 men will soon release 40,000 who have served longer than three years, usually reliable sources said. Recruiting was suspended last month. Joint summer maneuvers with Soviet divisions have been called off.

Communists conferred with officials of the Christian Democratic and Liberal Democratic parties, helpless stooges of the Eastern "Democratic bloc" government since 1949, and promised them larger roles.

Bishop Otto Dibelius, titular head of German Protestants, issued a pastoral letter hailing the "significant change" resulting from Communist concessions to the church last Wednesday. He expressed hope that "God is bringing us step by step nearer" to Germany's unification, but cautioned that "this goal is yet far off."

Adenauer Well-Informed

Chancellor Adenauer's personal specialist on German affairs, State Secretary Otto Lenz, studied the new East zone developments at first hand in Berlin.

He flew here after the Adenauer government sent an appeal from the Bonn Parliament to the Big Three Western powers last night for reunifying Germany on the basis of free elections.

Rumors of new Russian overtures circulated in this city, the most persistent being that a meeting of the four occupation high commissioners would be proposed soon.

Sedalian Dies In Korea Action Last Wednesday

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Frederickson, 1217 East Broadway, received word about 4 p. m. Saturday of the death of their son, William, Jr., 21, who was killed in action in Korea on June 10.

Word was received in a telegram from Maj. Gen. William E. Bergin, adjutant general of the army, which read:

"The Secretary of the Army has asked me to express his deep regret that your son, Pvt. William F. Frederickson, Jr., was killed in action in Korea June 10. Confirming letter follows."

Pvt. Frederickson had been in service with the 31st Regiment of the Seventh Airborne Division for 10 months and had been in fighting on the front lines in Korea for two months. He took his training at Camp Breckenridge, Ky.

While in school, Pvt. Frederickson was a carrier for the Democrat - Capital. After graduating from Smith-Cotton High School in 1949, Pvt. Frederickson was employed as an apprentice in the car department of the Missouri Pacific Shops for two years.

He is survived by his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. William F. Frederickson, Sr.; three sisters, Mrs. B. Wiseman, Leavenworth, Kans., Mrs. Harold Garrett, 711 South New York, and Mrs. Tommy Coffman, 215 West 10th; and one brother, Jack Frederickson of the home.

Elderly Man Found In Woods Near Noel After Long Search

NOEL, Mo., June 13 (AP)—An elderly man, missing for nearly 24 hours, was found alive today after a widespread search of a heavily wooded area east of here.

The man, John Edward Hall, 74, Neosho, was found to be suffering from heat prostration and was taken to a hospital.

Meredith Reeves, a state conservation commission employe, found hime face down by the side of a road in the Mill Creek community about 6½ miles east of here.

Conservation Commission employes, Boy Scouts, National Guardsmen, and a volunteer searching party had hunted through the area since last night.

Hall disappeared while picking huckleberries Friday afternoon. When he did not return for lunch, his wife sent their four sons to look for him. Later other searchers joined in the effort.

New York Hail Puts Snowplows Into Use

BATH, N. Y., June 13 (AP)—Hailstones from bean to baseball size pelted this western New York area early today and piled up to about two feet in spots. Snowplows were out to work to open a main highway on this mid-June day.

Lightning that came with the hail damaged two churches and four houses. Little damage was attributed to the hail.

The heaviest hail hit an area a half-mile wide and a mile long on Route 15 between here and Corning. A Corning Leader reporter said he saw two-foot-high piles of hailstones of varying sizes, and firemen said the hail lay "almost knee deep."

Buena Vista To Hold Open House Today

Afternoon Features Ice Cream Social And Band Concert

Everything is all set for the open house and ice cream social at Beuna Vista Home from 3 o'clock this afternoon until 8 o'clock tonight, and what's more, there is going to be a band concert between 3 and 4 o'clock.

H. H. Kroencke and some of the members of his band will be at the home during the afternoon to give an hour long concert. That is really wonderful, the people at the home think, because this will be the first time they have ever had a band concert.

Everybody has been so grand to them, Mrs. M. E. Green, superintendent of Beuna Vista says. The Missouri Pacific Women's Club is sending enough cake to serve several hundred people.

Mrs. Green hopes there will be enough visitors to eat all the cakes they have and she believes the tickets are going well. The star ticket seller, she thinks, is the day nurse at Beuna Vista, Mrs. Mary Hann. She has been selling tickets to everybody with whom she comes in contact and if they don't want to buy tickets they had better stay away from the home, even now, because she asks everybody who comes to Beuna Vista for any reason. And not only that—she sells them.

When the night nurse is off Mrs. Hann takes her place and one night when she was on night duty she decided she was going to sit on the front porch until the bread man came and sell him some tickets. He was due to arrive at about 3 o'clock in the morning—so there she sat at that early hour waiting for him. Just before he arrived the patients needed her and she went to them just long enough to miss the bread man—so if he doesn't buy a ticket and get to the ice cream social—at least she tried.

If it rains it will cut down the crowd but people should be so glad for a good rain that they should even be more eager to go out to the home for the open house and social—after all—what could bring a rain if a good ice cream social can't.

Red Guns Unleash Heaviest Barrage Of Korea Conflict

SEOUL, Sunday, June 14 (AP)—Communist guns unleashed their greatest barrage of the Korean war along a 50-mile sector of the Central Front Friday and Saturday, supporting heavy attacks by thousands of Chinese infantrymen that reportedly swept South Korean troops off Capitol Hill

In the air Communist planes raided Seoul for the second time in a week but dropped no bombs. U. S. Sabrejets destroyed two MIGs over Northwest Korea.

Semi-official U. S. Eighth Army totals showed that during a 12-hour period ending at 6 a. m. Saturday the Communists fired 118,000 artillery and mortar shells.

An Allied officer said "maybe they are getting rid of their surplus ammo before this war ends."

In possibly one of the last great actions before an armistice the Chinese hammered heavily and without regard for casualties from White Horse Mountain, northwest o' Chorwon, at Outpost Harry and its U. S. 3rd Division defenders for the third day, and at Sniper Ridge and Capitol Hill.

Fifteen Red attacks, launched Friday night roared on into Saturday at six points, the Eighth Army said.

ROKs Bear Assault Brunt

At least 62,000 rounds of artillery and mortar fire fell on the South Korean Eighth Division defending Capitol Hill, eight miles southeast of Kumsong.

Front-line reports said the hill mass, scene of repeatedly unsuccessful Red attacks, this time fell into Chinese hands before dawn.

It was in the Capitol Hill sector that strong Red assaults backed by tanks smashed four holes in the main Allied lines. Tough South Korean defenders were pushed back an undisclosed distance.

One Chinese division attacking the U. S. Third Division Outpost Harry for the third straight day was sent reeling back with staggering losses of 3,400 men killed and wounded.

Col. Russell (Red) Akers of Washington, D. C., commander of the Third Division's 15th Regiment made the casualty estimate.

Hundreds more Reds have fallen in battle with South Koreans who repulsed a vicious attack on White Horse Mountain overlooking Chorwon.

The record Red artillery barrage was expected to top the previous 24-hour record of 107,650 rounds fired in late May on the Western Front.

In the air war streaking U. S. Saberjets shot down two Communist MIGs, probably destroyed one and damaged one in air battles near the Suiho power dam on the Yalu River border of Manchuria.

The Fifth Air Force weekly summary announced that two Sabres were lost to Red ground fire, while a helicopter and a Thunderjet fighter-bomber were lost to other causes, for a total of four downed.

During the week Sabres shot down seven MIGs, probably destroyed two more and damaged two.

Koreans Stage Wild Protest Against Truce

Our Soldiers Shoot In Air To Stop Mob Of Stone-Throwers

SEOUL, Sunday, June 14 (AP)—Street demonstrations in Korea, raging through the fifth day in mounting opposition to a truce, reached the point Saturday where U. S. soldiers fired carbines over the heads of stone-throwing youths.

More than 10,000 demonstrated in Seoul. Another 10,000 demonstrated in Pusan.

Until Saturday, only fire hoses had been used to discourage crowds from approaching too close to military equipment.

The latest incident occurred in Pusan, southeastern port. There a crowd of 200 youths, 17 to 19 years of age, stoned a U. S. truck hauling another vehicle.

Two U. S. soldiers on the truck fired 10 to 15 shots from carbines over the heads of the youths. This show of force cleared a path for the vehicles and the soldiers drove away. Later the soldiers were questioned by military police.

A military spokesman said the soldiers fired only after the Korean youths tried to board the truck.

President Syngman Rhee, while showing few signs of relenting in his adamant stand against any truce which would leave Korea divided, sought to counsel his supporters against violence.

He told war veterans demonstrating in Seoul:

"I request that our people be extremely careful in launching popular campaigns so that no injustice might be caused our allies."

He urged the veterans to return home and "leave all to the government."

Disabled veterans, including some amputees, were among the more than 10,000 who marched in Seoul Saturday. The veterans carried banners reading "We will march north until our remaining arms and legs are cut."

A high school demonstrator bit the tip of his finger and wrote in blood "Drive north, unify Korea." He wrote it in Korean, "Puk chin, ton il."

So far the obviously government-inspired demonstrations have been more anti-truce than anti-American or anti-Allied. U. S. military police have held to a policy of "hands off," leaving it up to Korean national and metropolitan police to keep order.

Child Drowns In Old Channel At Gravois Beach

Roland Rowe, 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Rowe, of Gravois Beach, Mo., drowned Saturday about 2 p. m. in the Little Gravois channel of the Lake of the Ozarks.

Witnesses said that the youngster, who was on a watercycle with several other children, drowned when the boy fell into the water. All the other children were uninjured.

The boy's body was recovered an hour later by his father, who called the Kidwell ambulance service of Versailles to bring equipment for artificial respiration.

The coroner of Morgan County, Gene Bartrum, accompanied the ambulance to Gravois Beach and worked on the boy until 5 p. m., when he was pronounced dead.

The Rowes had recently moved to Gravois Beach, where Mr. Rowe operated a cafe, from Higginsville.

The body was taken to the Kidwell Funeral Home in Versailles and then to the former home in Higginsville.

LONDON, June 13 (AP—Mayor William E. Kemp of Kansas City, said today his wife's condition remains critical and doctors have failed to arouse her from "the deep sleep" into which she fell last Monday following a brain tumor operation.

"The doctors feel there is reasonable hope she may come out of it in the next couple of days," the mayor added.

Mrs. Kemp, who is 59, is in London's Maudsley Hospital.

RABBI AND MRS. NEWTON J. FRIEDMAN, former Sedalians, and their two children, Jeffery left, and Gary, right. Rabbi Friedman has accepted a call to Macon, Ga. He has been the past two years at Wyoming Valley, Pa.

Rabbi Friedman, Who Began Service Here, Moves South

Rabbi Newton J. Friedman, whose first charge as a rabbi was at Temple Beth El in Sedalia and who, while here, married a Sedalia girl, Rosalind Kanter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Kanter, 406 Dal-Whi-Mo Court, has accepted a call from Temple Beth Israel, Macon, Ga.

A native of Cleveland, O., where he was graduated cum laude from Western Reserve University, he was ordained at Hebrew College, Cincinnati, in 1934, and came to Sedalia, which he still calls home.

In 1945 the Friedmans went to Wyoming Valley, Wilkes-Barre, Pa., from Austin, Texas, where they have both taken part in all activities of the Wyoming Valley Community.

In an editorial from one of the papers in tribute to Rabbi Friedman, it said in part: "His eloquence has been heard from many Protestant pulpits as well as those of his own faith. His name as a speaker is also a familiar one to the many service clubs and other assemblies which he has addressed. Wilkes College, Wyoming Seminary and Academy of Jewish Studies of the Jewish Community Center have known him as an able instructor. He represented Jewish Chautauqua Society as a counselor at Sky Lake Methodist Camp.

"Rabbi Friedman once told the Wise Men's Club at Central YMCA that we cannot be neutral in politics, crime, juvenile delinquency, nor in the breakdown of our social situations, lynchings or the persecution of minority groups. He held it a sin to be indifferent to what is happening about us. He has lived according to that belief while in Wilkes-Barre, an evaluation of his services to the community readily shows."

Of Mrs. Friedman the editorial said: "Mrs. Friedman has shared in community undertakings in many directions. As they go away Rabbi and Mrs. Friedman will bear with them the grateful appreciation of the community."

While head of the B'nai B'rith congregation at Wyoming Valley, Rabbi Friedman was actively identified with civic, religious and community activities. He was chairman of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, in which capacity he occupied scores of Protestant pulpits in interest of brotherhood, chairman of the Jewish Community Relations Council of Wyoming Valley Jewish Committee, director of the American Red Cross and Committee of 100 for industrial expansion of Wyoming Valley.

He also served as chairman of the mental health committee, Wyoming Valley Community Council; Luzerne County Defense Council; co-chairman, clergy committee, Community Chest; speakers' chairman United Jewish Appeal; instructor of Old Testament and Comparative Religions, Wilkes College; executive committee, American Jewish Committee and member of its National Supervisory Committee of Community Relations and rabbinical counselor representing Jewish Chautauqua Society at Skylake Methodist Camp.

Rabbi Friedman spent the summer of 1950 surveying European Jewish communities.

The statement from the Wyoming Valley Council on the resignation of Rabbi Friedman follows:

"Although we rejoice in the opportunity that has come to Rabbi Newton Friedman to enter a larger field of service in Georgia, we regret his leaving our community.

"Mr. Friedman has been a friend to all the ministers of Wyoming Valley. The Institute on Judaism which he and his congregation have initiated and maintained is an annual event of great spiritual significance to the clergy.

"We all like Rabbi Friedman and appreciate his activity in every constructive phase of community life. He has kept true to the prophetic traditions of his faith and he has also enriched our appreciation of its beauty and sanctity.

"Our congregations count him a cherished friend and will long remember his message and work among us."

The above was printed in two of the Wilkes-Barre newspapers about him.

As chairman of the Jewish Community Relations Council of Wyoming Community Relations Council of Wyoming Valley Jewish Committee he handles public relations and matters of prejudice and discriminations. He is author of several television scripts, and in 1952 led the Northeast Pennsylvania Red Cross donor campaign with the largest number of pints of blood collected," one of the papers stated.

Mrs. Friedman is a graduate of the University of Missouri, where she was active in campus affairs. She held an office in her sorority, Alpha Phi Epsilon.

Mrs. Friedman has been a member of Wyoming Valley Symphony Orchestra, of the Board of Jewish Welfare Agency, a delegate to Wyoming Valley Jewish Committee and a member of the American Association of University Women.

Rabbi and Mrs. Friedman have two sons, Gary and Jeffery.

Notes from Public Library—

Summer Activities Featured In Special Books for Week

Summer activities are featured in the library's special offerings this week, with a new book by Harry Zarchy heading the list. It is "Let's Fish," and is intended to be of great help to experienced fishermen as well as the beginner to whom it is mainly addressed. It was written in answer to many questions about fishing to aid those people who would like to fish, but don't know how, where or when. Fishing is wonderful recreation for everyone, says Mr. Zarchy, for it gives Mother and Dad a chance to get away from everyday chores and annoyances and allows them to relax completely. Young people are introduced to an activity that can be carried on the rest of their lives, and fishing teaches youngsters how to get along with other people, and also engenders good sportsmanship. "Let's Fish" contains information on equipment, casting, live baits, lures, tackle making and repair and how to identify fish.

Another volume of advice on the Great American Sport is "Fishing Is Fun" by A. H. Garhart, with generous use made of line drawings for illustrating correct casting techniques. Mr. Carhart emphasizes lake and stream lore in his book, which he says is an integral part of successful fishing.

"Your First Boat" by David Klein, tells how to choose and use various kinds of boats. Although the book makes interesting reading for anyone with an interest in sailing, its main point is valuable advice to a prospective boat purchaser. Mr. Klein said it was written to convince everyone who wants a boat that he can afford one, and he shows how you can buy a boat for as little as $35 and keep her on the water for no more money than you would spend on your favorite hobby.

Camping trips, whether by motor, canoe, or any other means, can turn into successful and memorable vacations, according to Homer Halstead, author of a readable and entertaining book called "How to Live in the Woods." Menus, grocery lists, packing lists, how to make camp, build fires, and even a chapter on how to avoid getting lost in the woods or find your way out if you do get lost, are included. Another volume that has proved its value is "Camping and Woodcraft" by Horace Kephart, one of the most complete handbooks for vacation campers ever published.

Flivvers Found Favor Here With Throng in Ford Parade Back in '22

Observance by the Ford Motor Company of its 50th anniversary this coming Tuesday brings back memories to many Sedalians, Pettis Countains and others, of a "Ford Day" celebration held in Sedalia Saturday, May 20, 1922.

"Flivvers" were here from near and far and an immense crowd viewed a huge parade in which 75 Fords were entered for prizes offered by Sedalia merchants and others. New models, old ones, roadsters, touring cars, coupes, sedans, speedsters and decorated trucks moved through the streets where sidewalks were thronged with peopie.

The city presented a geniune holiday appearance and in the parade, aside from the regularly registered entrants, were at least as many more that drove in the street exhibition.

The parade was led by Mel T. Henderson, proprietor of the local Ford agency, with Shields R. Smith, manager, followed by the American Legion car, Kroenke's Band, then the contestants.

There were comments on the sidelines, serious and some amusing and otherwise, as some of the new, nifty and shiny models moved along and laughter as a few of the more ancient and dilapidated ones rolled by. Some centered their attention on the fat man in the parade, S. A. O'Neal, who tipped the scales at 347 pounds, and some were giving attention to George Spears, then 78, the oldest man. W. T. Angle, county agent, had a car carrying 40 passengers besides himself, all small boys, they being in the tonneau, on running boards and fenders, everywhere a foothold could be obtained.

Prizes were awarded by the 20 judges as follows: Oldest Ford in parade L. S. Minard, Sedalia, first; Mrs. C. M. Jackson, Sedalia, second; and Damon Hieronymus, third.

Sinkiang Closed to India

NEW DELHI (AP)—India's trade with Communist-occupied Sinkiang province has been at a standstill since the Red takeover of September, 1949, Minister of State for Commerce D. P. Karmarkar says. Karmarkar added that Peiping had refused to recognize the Indian consulate at Kashgar and attempts to reopen it so far have been unsuccessful.

A few hundred Sinkiang refugees, however, managed to escape and trek their way to Kashmir. The Nehru government has settled some of them in Kashmir while the others have left for Turkey and Mecca.

Special College Course for Girls Going to Service

JONESBORO, Ark., June 13 (AP)—Potential service brides and Wacs, Waves or Wafs-to-be get a foretaste of what life holds for them—and rifle practice too—in an experimental course at Arkansas State College.

Based on the premise that most of today's college women will marry men who are or will be connected with the armed services, the no-credit course has two aims:

To teach wives-to-be something about the various branches of the military services, and to break down prejudices against women in the service.

The course is the brainchild of Lt. Col. Walter J .Haberer, professor of military science. He proposed it to Dr. Carl Reng, ASC president, last year and an exploratory class, offering an hour credit, was started. Thirteen girls enrolled for one two-hour lecture each week for five weeks. Col. Haberer did the teaching himself.

The coeds studied the history of the service, rates and rank, base pay and the "extras," saw films ranging from drill to combat, and heard lectures by officers from the four service branches.

This year school officials were curious whether the girls were taking the course as a "snap." The one-hour credit was withdrawn but 19 girls enrolled, six more than last year.

Barbara Wathen of Jonesboro, who represented Arkansas in the Miss Universe beauty pageant in Los Angeles last year, is engaged to a 1953 graduate who was commissioned a second lieutenant at the May 29 commencement.

Ann Mizell of Bay, Ark., started the course because she wanted to become a physical therapist in one of the nurses corps. Now she's engaged to a military student who will be commissioned in January.

"I took the course again this year just to learn a little bit more about the services," she said. "It's a course that should be offered college women all over the country. I'd like to see it expanded so it would go into more detail."

The girls get a little bonus that they hadn't expected. They have been given almost free run of the ROTC rifle range.

"Some of the girls spend two or three hours a day over here, sometimes firing, sometimes asking questions," Haberer said. "We have some girls shooting cards of 98."

Haberer's assistants, Capt. Jam Farrell and Sgt. John Grant, had a bit of advice for co-eds with marriage in view.

"A college girl that's figuring on getting married might just as well figure she is going to marry a man in the service, a veteran or one that's going to serve. She will be much better prepared if at least she knows the difference between a corporal and an admiral."

Haberer said that he had inquiries from several other schools asking full details of the course.

It is generally stated that King John signed the Magna Charta at Runnymede, June 15, 1215. Actually, it was not signed at all, but it was sealed.

Grave of James W. Riley Has More Visitors Than Dillinger's

INDIANAPOLIS, June 13 (AP) — It's just a pleasant stroll to the grave of John Dillinger in Crown Hill Cemetery. But even children get winded climbing the hill to James Whitcomb Riley's

Yet the famed Hoosier poet's resting place once more is the No. 1 attraction to visitors of Crown Hill, one of the nation's largest cemeteries. Here also are buried a President, three Vice-Presidents and scores of others prominent in literature and industry.

It will be 19 years next month since federal agents trapped the bank-robbing gang leader outside a Chicago theater and shot him down. He was buried in shady lowlands in the 540 - acre cemetery, under a stone which says simply: "John H. Dillinger 1903-1934."

"It used to be that Dillinger's grave was visited the most," said Howard T. Wood, Crown Hill's executive manager. "Now it's Riley again. The kids have started tossing pennies on his tomb. I don't know who started it."

Crown Hill collected almost $50 in children's pennies at the Riley tomb last year. The money was turned over to a Riley memorial association.

The setting of the poet's resting place is enough to mark it as a focal point of the big cemetery. The marble slab and the open Grecian colonnade overlook the entire city. The steep-sloped knob gave the cemetery its name.

There's a slab over Dillinger's grave, too, but it doesn't show. Soon after the burial, there were reports the body might be stolen. Police and cemetery guards watched for days. Then John Dillinger Sr., a farmer at nearby Mooresville, had Dewey Shoemaker, cemetery maintenance foreman pour an extra four inches of concrete around the concrete burial box. He added a slab of steel-reinforced concrete 10 inches thick on top.

That ended the body - stealing scare, and today there's nothing except the chipped headstone to distinguish the bandit's grave from those of his father, who died in 1943, his mother, Mollie, who died in 1907, or his stepmother, Lizzie, who died in 1933.

There's an ironic coincidence that Dillinger was buried in a cemetery that got its start because of violent death back in the Civil War days.

A smallpox epidemic in a war prison camp in Indianapolis killed so many Confederate soldiers that the old Greenlawn Cemetery on the southwest side of the city was filled. Later, when that cemetery was swallowed up in an industrial area, 1,616 Confederate soldiers were reburied in a common grave in Crown Hill. A single monument marks the spot.

Wood thinks Dillinger's grave might rank below No. 2 in Crown Hill's other famous hadn't died so long ago. "Many of our famous people are getting pretty far back in history," he said.

President Benjamin Harrison is buried near the foot of the steep slope rising to Riley's tomb. His grave is marked by a simple granite tombstone.

The Vice Presidents are Thomas R. Marshall of Woodrow Wilson's administrations, still remembered for "What this country needs is a good five-cent cigar"; Charles W. Fairbanks, No. 2 under Theodore Roosevelt, and Thomas A. Hendricks, who served less than a year during Grover Cleveland's first term.

Besides Riley, famous Indiana authors include Booth Tarkington and Meredith Nicholson. Then there's Frank (Kin) Hubbard, who drew the Abe Martin cartoons.

Outlanders show more interest in Dillinger's grave than fellow Hoosiers, Wood reports, but even Hoosier historical groups still include the Dillinger grave when they ask him to lay out tours over Crown Hill's 50 miles of drives.

ARE LAXATIVES MAKING YOUR "CONDITION" WORSE?

This natural way to regularity is helping more Americans than any medicinal laxative on the market!

FOREWORD: Too often, attempts to treat constipation cause serious mis-treatment of the digestive system. Long-continued overdosing, with products intended only for overnight laxative relief, can lead to serious lifelong suffering. Since constipation is probably the most widespread of all human maladies, you owe it to yourself to read the following statement.

(signed) KELLOGG COMPANY
Battle Creek, Michigan

• • •

Since the turn of the century, this nation's health progress has been nothing short of remarkable.

Twenty years or more have been added to the average American life-expectancy at birth.

Death rates from specific diseases such as pneumonia and tuberculosis, have been cut—some almost to the vanishing point.

The general level of nutrition has risen year after year.

What is hard to understand is how—despite all this enormous health progress—a seemingly simple ailment like Constipation could be so widespread that according to competent medical authorities, at least 70% of our total population, from time to time, suffer from constipation in one form or another.

• • •

Is the prevalence of constipation—occasional, common or chronic—due to lack of medical research, progress and knowledge on the subject? Far from it.

On the contrary, nature and the medical profession—separately and together—have provided man with a vast array of remedies, treatment and even prevention.

But by and large, constipation is not a "ready-made" condition that strikes without warning; it is a progressive ailment.

—AND THE PROGRESS OF CONSTIPATION, FROM OCCASIONAL TO COMMON TO CHRONIC, IS HASTENED TO A WIDELY UNREALIZED EXTENT BY THE WAY THE DIGESTIVE SYSTEM IS ABUSED WITH PURGATIVES TOO HARSH IN IMMEDIATE EFFECT TO HAVE A SOUND CORRECTIVE RESULT.

When continual abuse is accompanied by not enough exercise, tension of modern living, and today's steady diet of processed food lacking in natural bulk . . . then it is little wonder that some degree of constipation, sooner or later, is almost inevitable.

• • •

Few people indeed are ever aware what damage can take place inside them, when without medical guidance—without even reading the directions on the label—they choose a laxative at random and take "big doses" willy-nilly.

This continual overdosing, instead of the careful therapeutic dose designed only for overnight relief of a temporary stoppage, can exert upon the delicate digestive system a strain nature never intended. The fact that thousands unknowingly abuse themselves for years in this manner, without apparent harm, merely demonstrates that the human digestive system can stand unbelievable abuse.

Sooner or later the vicious "laxative habit" takes hold.

And before they realize it, their condition has progressed so far that even daily laxative or purgative dosing can no longer bring satisfactory, comfortable relief.

These men and women tried to substitute harsh purgative "forcing action," for the natural regularity which sensible daily habits and sufficient bulk in the diet could probably have maintained . . . if only they had "let nature take its course."

Let us see what happens inside the digestive system, when it is churned up by unnatural purgative over-dosing.

1. Most purgative compounds, designed for fast overnight relief, must depend on: (a) mechanical action which loads the lower intestine (colon) with a flood of water; or (b) "irritant" action which, with certain chemical ingredients, prods bowel walls into muscular contraction.
2. Obviously, these compounds draw off water from the system and rush it through the intestines; thus also drawing off fluids and juices needed for normal digestion, and vitamins and minerals from the food you have eaten.
3. The chemical action of these compounds, when they reach the colon, often further irritates an already over-sensitive intestinal tract. It tightens and becomes tense.
4. RESULT: An upset stomach, a small intestine containing little nourishment to feed the body, and a colon which often needs another purgative dose—and another—and another—to prod it into renewed muscular action.

IN SHORT: YOU INFLICT UPON YOUR DIGESTIVE SYSTEM UNNATURAL PUNISHMENT WHICH LEAVES A TRAIL OF DIGESTIVE HAVOC, INSTEAD OF THE CORRECTIVE RESULTS HOPED FOR.

With these facts before you, is it possible to doubt that continual overdosing can so weaken your digestive function that finally, "the remedy is worse than the disease"?

If you feel you have to take a laxative occasionally, be sure you take it wisely—in an accurate, recommended dose.

BUT THERE IS A WAY TO AVOID DRUG-TYPE LAXATIVES ALTOGETHER, AND PLACE YOUR MAIN DEPENDENCE ON NATURE.

* * *

It is a medically established fact that nature has provided, in the natural foods men were intended to eat, all the elements necessary for lifelong avoidance of common constipation.

In many of these natural foods—such as certain vegetables, fruits and grains—nature grew, AND GROWS TODAY, abundant natural fibrous bulk which normally and naturally aids the rhythmic process of elimination.

And in no other natural food is this natural bulk so ideally found as in the vitamin-rich, mineral-rich outer layers of the whole wheat kernel, known generally as bran.

Whole-wheat bran is nature's "food instead of a medicine" . . . a veritable storehouse of such essential nutritional elements as iron, calcium, phosphorus, vitamin A, Thiamine, riboflavin and niacin.

—whole bran when properly processed and shredded yields smooth bulk the digestive system can handle unimpaired.

—AND MOST IMPORTANT TO CONSTIPATION SUFFERERS: THE COMPLETE, WHOLE BRAN, WITH NOTHING TAKEN AWAY TO LESSEN ITS EFFECTIVENESS, IS KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN—THE NATURAL LAXATIVE CEREAL.

Let us tell you how Kellogg's All-Bran works inside your body. And we leave it to you to compare its action with the unnatural "forcing action" which takes place when you overdose your digestive system in the way previously described.

1. Kellogg's All-Bran has no significant laxative action in the stomach or small intestine, thus it does not significantly change the normal digestive sequence. Only in the colon, where laxative action is needed, does laxative action take place.
2. Kellogg's All-Bran is eaten with milk, thus it draws from the system no needed water and digestive juices. It has no harsh action, thus it does not rush vitamins or minerals past the small intestine too quickly for absorption.
3. Kellogg's All-Bran is rich in vitamins and minerals, thus it actually assures the presence of these elements in the small intestine for proper absorption.
4. Kellogg's All-Bran is shredded to fine, soft consistency, thus it supplies bulk which neither irritates nor inflames the normal colon. It helps—as nature itself intended—to supply the proper consistency for unforced, normal elimination.

THERE IS NO CHURNING, NO STOMACH UPSET, NO AFTER-EFFECT, EXCEPT THE FEELING OF SATISFACTION AND FULFILLMENT WHICH COMES WITH NORMAL, NATURAL ELIMINATION.

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN IS SAFE FOR THE NORMAL DIGESTIVE TRACT.

YOU DO NOT COURT THE DISASTER OF PROGRESSIVE CONSTIPATION WHEN YOU EAT ONE OUNCE OF KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN DAILY, AND DRINK PLENTY OF WATER.

* * *

Kellogg's All-Bran is not a habit-forming "drug-type" laxative but a delicious NATURAL laxative cereal.

It is sold as a cereal. Bought at cereal prices. Served as a cereal. Eaten as a cereal. Enjoyed like a cereal, with a crunchy, toasty, nut-like flavor like a cereal. Digested like a cereal. Many prefer it, on taste and eating qualities alone, to any other cereal on the market.

Kellogg's All-Bran is ALL BRAN. No "part-bran" cereal—in the amounts you usually eat for breakfast—can give you the benefits of All-Bran.

No exaggerated claims are made for the laxative qualities of All-Bran. The name Kellogg's on the package, a symbol of healthful foods throughout the world, speaks for itself.

But the thousands of unsolicited testimonial letters which pour in—and the fact that it is today the largest-selling laxative cereal in the world, with over four hundred million servings per year consumed by the American public—indicate that it lives up to the fine things said about it.

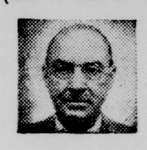

Kellogg's All-Bran is no "overnight cure" for constipation. There is no such cure. All-Bran must be eaten regularly to obtain the natural and lasting relief you are looking for.

Kellogg's makes it easy for you to prove that to yourself. Just eat All-Bran every morning for 10 days. Then, if you're not completely satisfied, send the empty carton to Kellogg's, Battle Creek, Michigan—and get double your money back.

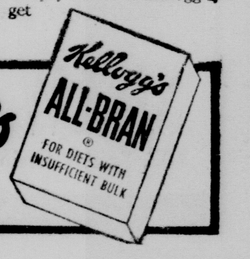

READ HOW OTHER SUFFERERS FROM CONSTIPATION (due to lack of bulk in the diet) HAVE BENEFITED:

"I spent half my life looking for a cure for constipation. After 35 years I began eating Kellogg's All-Bran daily. I haven't been bothered with constipation since."
—Mrs. Margaret Topham
300 W. Shephard St., Saginaw 3, Mich.

"I wish I had all the money I've spent on laxatives. I used them for 20 years. Finally I got around to trying Kellogg's All-Bran. I haven't needed a laxative since."

Muskrat Sabotage

SOMERS, Mont (AP)—The good ship "Flathead" will sail again despite efforts a hungry muskrat made to scuttle her. A fisherman noticed that the excursion boat was riding low in the water of Flathead Lake. He looked for a leak and found that a muskrat had rambled up a discharge pipe, gnawed through, climbed into the boat and—died.

Lead poisoning stopped the saboteur.

Indian Settlement 2000 Years Old Found Just Outside St. Elizabeth In Miller Co.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Man's constant efforts to put tags on all the twigs of his family tree —back to its beginning—have been advanced a little more by the discovery near here of an Indian settlement possibly 2,000 years old.

The discovery, made in 1946, was made public today by the State Division of Resources and Development. Announcement had been held up while excavations were going on at the site—just to see what they had.

Don Johnson, curator of the state museum, admits "we've just scratched the surface" of the settlement, located at the base of a huge and previously unlisted natural bridge just outside St. Elizabeth, small German settlement in Miller County.

What further excavation will reveal only time can tell. But Johnson expects it to go back before the pottery period, which is roughly figured at about 500 A. D. for Missouri.

From the layman's point of view the most significant discovery at the site has been the ceremonial burial of an Indian woman and her child. Both skeletons, complete but for the feet, have been removed, reconstructed, and placed in an exhibit now at the state museum in the state capitol.

But archaeologists, frequently and sometimes scornfully referred to as "bone hunters," will be more interested in the 1,000 to 1,500 artifacts turned up so far at the settlement.

Artifacts is the term by which archaeologists refer to the stone, bone and pottery tools and utensils left behind by the ancient as clues to their culture.

These tools and utensils, the skill with which they were made, the materials used, the methods employed, and their position in the excavations, are evidence archaeologists depend on for their knowledge of early man.

From them they can estimate, but only estimate, the dates of occupation by the peoples who left them.

The staff of the state museum, which has had charge of the excavations at the settlement, admits it lacks sufficient evidence to be definite about dates. But the evidence they have leads them to believe the objects found were used by members of what is known as the "middle woodland" period of man's existence—about 1,000 to 1,300 A. D.

And that's for top level of occupation at the natural bridge. Johnson, from preliminary studies, thinks there are three levels-each one covered with silt during periods of disuse.

Just how far back the bottom level will date is anybody's guess right now.

"It's a big project that will probably never be completed," Johnson said.

To reach the bottom level—without destroying the relics the earth over it may contain—means that tons of each must be sifted carefully. And archaeologists use trowels and camels'-hair brushes, not bulldozers.

Though the site has only recently been discovered by the history-seekers, it has been a neighborhood showplace for years. Hidden to the casual observer, it is in a wooded area at the edge of a wheat field on the farm of William Kemna. Not far away is Big Tavern Creek, a tributary of the Osage River.

For years neighbors and their children used the natural bridge for everything from a picnic grounds to a barn, and during World War I it was used to store hay. A road once ran under it.

Now, 100 to 200 feet across, 400 feet long and from 15 to 50 feet high, it is another known location of an early Indian village.

Johnson says the bridge, and the fields surrounding it, were at one time the site of a "very large village." Large numbers of mussel shells, probably fathered for food for the big tavern, help substantiate his statement.

A layer of these mussel shells covered the skeleton of the woman, about 18 years old, and the child, about 2½. Also covering them was a reddish-brown layer of silt that may once have been a mat or blanket.

The skeletons were well-preserved and complete but for the feet—possibly the result of an unknown burial ceremony, Johnson said.

The skeletons aren't the first found there, however. Kemna remembers a skull being found about 1910, but says it caused no excitement. And heavy rains, which raised Arch Creek flowing under the bridge, were apt to wash skulls out into the field below, he said.

One Columbia man took off two or three suitcases of these, Kemna said, but he rosen't know what became of them.

The site is not without its legend. Kemna says his neighbors used to tell about " a headless woman who'd come out of one of the bridge caves at sundown. They said she'd pick up wood chips, then go back in, out of sight. But I never saw her and I don't believe it."

SITE OF INDIAN SETTLEMENT DISCOVERY—A discovery, in 1946, of an Indian settlement—possibly 2,000 years old—just outside St. Elizabeth, a small German settlement in Miller County, was made public this week. This view is of a previously unreported natural bridge, under which the Kemna Indian Burial was discovered. This view is from the uphill side and a turn in the "tunnel" partially cuts off a view of the larger, downhill opening. Also obstructing the view are large boulders; some were washed down when a heavy rain 40 years ago washed out a road under the bridge; other rocks simply fell off the sides and ceiling when undercut by erosion. It is about 125 feet across this face of the opening; on the downhill side, the opening is 200 feet across. The burial find is located about 75 feet inside this uphill opening, to the left in the picture. Under the bridge in daytime, artificial light is not needed except for careful excavation. This photo was taken by Walker of the Missouri Resoures Division, Jefferson City, Missouri. (AP Photograph)

7,000 Miles By Bicycle

SINGAPORE (AP — Two British-born Moslems, Asma and Ahmad Sayeg, travelling 7,000 miles by tandem bicycle, have reached here after crossing Europe, the Middle East, Pakistan, India and Ceylon.

The Sayegs adopted the Moslem faith after visiting a mosque in Surrey, England, in 1950. Then they decided to visit the Moslem countries. Their tandem was fitted with a sidecar in which they carried their tent, cooking utensils and pet Pekinese.

FHA Training Session Here

An all day training meeting of county personnel of the Farmers Home Administration at the Little Theatre in Sedalia attended by 31 supervisory and office personnel from 14 units who serve 25 west central Missouri counties.

The meeting was presided over by Arthur I. Stanley, state field representative, with the principal speaker being Stephen C. Hughes, state director for Missouri. Mr. Hughes stressed the importance of carefully extending credit to eligible buyers, saying that with the declining net income with farmers there was a tendency for farmers to expand their credit too far in the loaning program of the Farmers Home Administration for 1953-54. Some phases of the farm housing program has been eliminated so only bonifide farmers would be eligible for farm housing loans. The regular production and subsistence loan, as farm ownership loan service, will be extended to all those who could be found eligible.

Among those attending the meeting were: Stephen C. Hughes, state director; J. L. Ingwerson, chief, farm ownership section; J. O. Martin, chief, production and subsistence loan section; A. B. Mussman, administration officer; Marvin Gray, farm ownership loan specialist; Mary L. Johnson, home management specialist; Joel Ewing, production loan clerk; Jane Snider, office management assistant; Arthur L. Stanley, state field representative; and William B. Bysert, farm ownership appraiser.

The personnel of the local F. H. A. office attending included Oscar DeWolf, county supervisor, and Miss Louise Loeper, office secretary.

Mexican Speed Problem

MEICO CITY (AP)—Faster traffic on the road to Acapulco is promised, but nobody will mind that. There is little to see between Taxco and the Pacific Coast resort, as popular with Mexicans as with foreign tourists.

The communications ministry warned holiday-makers repair work on the road is still going on. It said there would be slow stretches and dusty spots. But it promised the improvements later would make up for the present nuisance.

The ministry said the driving time would be cut from eight hours to six hours, 21 minutes, at an average speed of 42 miles an hour. It said the road would be safe—but not as safe—for drivers who want to cover the 260 miles in five hours.

Ike Views Storm Ruin On Saturday

FLINT, Mich., June 13 (AP)—President Eisenhower flew over the tornado-devastated northern outskirts of Flint today to view first hand the area where 113 were killed by a twister Monday.

The presidential plane dropped below 1,000 feet as it began circling the area at 4:40 p. m.

Orienting himself over downtown Flint, the pilot then headed directly for Coldwater Road, along which 40 homes in a row were leveled, and the Beecher metropolitan area.

The plane made two circles of the area, giving the President a six-minute closeup of the devastation.

Within 10 minutes after clearing the stricken area, Mr. Eisenhower personally dictated by radio to the CAA airways communications station at Bishop Field the following Mrs. for delivery to Flint's mayor:

"Dear Mr. Mayor, even a fleeting look at the disaster section of your city such as we were able to obtain as we flew over it today clearly shows the destructive force of a tornado and the extent of disaster suffered by many of our citizens.

"My sympathies and best wishes go to each of these families, together with the assurance that all appropriate agencies, including the federal government, will co-operate to assist them in this time of trouble."

President Eisenhower changed his schedule on a flight from Rapid City, S. D., to Hanover, N. H., where he will receive an honorary degree at Dartmouth College tomorrow. The Chief Executive had been west to address a Young Republican rally and to vacation.

Murray Snyder, assistant White House press secretary, said the President would fly over storm-stricken Worcester, Mass., tomorrow.

Meanwhile, Flint poured out its sorrow over its tornado dead in an unprecedented mass funeral today.

At the pretty little Catholic Church of St. Agnes, close by the disaster scene, final rites were conducted for 16 of the 113 victims.

Twelve small white, blue and pinkish coffins stood out in the solemn rituals.

These contained the bodies of children, all 12 years old or less. Many of the 1,000 mourners sobbed aloud as the fleet of hearses arrived for the final requiem mass.

Missouri Looks Good To 82-Year-Old Woman From Centralia, Wash

It was back in 1907 when Mrs. L. V. Lindemuth was last in Missouri, and when she flew in from Centralia, Wash., Friday everybody was dripping with perspiration and complaining about the terribly hot weather, but she did not think it was bad at all.

Mrs. Lindemuth, who is here for a visit with her niece, Mrs. John Murrell, Mr. Murrell and Ann, 640 East Tenth, is 82 and she made her first plane ride when she came back here for a visit.

She really liked riding on the plane and when she goes back to her home in Washington, how do you think she is going? Why, by plane, of course. She never knew how much fun it was to ride on a plane before and now she doesn't want to travel any other way.

Bettye Murrell and Ann went up to Kansas City to meet her and off the plane she got just as peppy as if she were 16, and she enjoyed the ride on down to Sedalia in the car. In fact, she is enjoying everything.

Missouri looks mighty good to her, but different, as she remembers it. She was surprised at the number of brick and stone houses in Kansas City, particularly the stone ones. "They don't build houses out of stone in Washington," she said.

Everything about the state is wonderful and she is doing something to the people around her. They are so amazed at her gayness, her energy and her outlook on life they have almost forgotten that it is hot.

Army Chief Takes-Over In Colombia

BOGOTA, Colombia, June 13 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Gustavo Rojas Pinilla, commander of the Colombian Army, seized the presidency of Colombia today in a coup.

No violence was reported in the seizure of the presidential palace. Officials said there were no injuries but an air of tension had prevailed.

Laureano Gomez, who had taken over the presidency earlier in the day, replacing Acting President Roberto Urdaneta Arbelaez, was reported unofficially to be under arrest in his home.

The report could not immediately be confirmed.

Rojas Pinilla announced that he would make a radio address to the nation at 9:30 p. m. (CST).

Pending his talk, details of the coup were withheld.

Gomez retired temporarily from the presidency in October, 1951, because of ill health. Urdaneta, a former chairman of the 60-nation U. N. Political Committee in New York, took over for him.

On May 25, Urdaneta reorganized the Cabinet and named Lucio Pabon Nenez as minister of war. Today Gomez shifted again and gave that key job to Jorge Leyva. Leyva had been minister of public works.

Pinilla then surrounded the Presidential Palace, which is next door to the Ministry of War.

About a month ago Urdaneta tried to send Pinilla to Europe to inaugurate a new Colombia Air service. At the last moment, Pinilla changed his mind and left the plane just before takeoff.

The national constituent assembly meets Monday.

WORDS THEY'VE WAITED FOR—United States troops at a bunker near Panmunjom listen intently to a radio broadcast which informs them that UN and Communist negotiators have come to an agreement on the POW issue, and that the dream of an armistice may be near realization.

PUT IT BACK ON THE STOVE, BUDDY—While his comrades cheer, an exultant G.I. tosses his "stovepipe" bazooka to another soldier in a bunker near Panmunjom, upon hearing by radio that an armistice may soon be realized in Korea, with the signing by UN and Communist negotiators of an agreement on the POW issue.

New AFL Chief Is Big, Solid, Experienced

WASHINGTON, June 13 (AP)—The American Federation of Labor is big, solid and experienced, and when it picked a new president recently, it chose a man who looks like the very embodiment of these characteristics.

George Meany weighs in the neighborhood of 200 pounds. His union experience spans more than 40 years.

Strictly speaking, it goes back even further; his father was the president of a local. When Meany was 28, he became business agent of the same local. He is 58 now.

By trade, he is a plumber, like the new secretary of labor, Martin Durkin.

But by profession, Meany is a labor executive. From that first job as a business agent, he moved steadily upward through the echelons of the AFL until he reached the top. He was president of the New York State Federation of Labor, then secretary-treasurer of the AFL.

Unofficially, he was actually presiding over the organization for several months during the illness which finally was fatal for the late William Green. The AFL today claims a membership of more than eight million in 110 national unions and 44,000 locals.

Meany has a record of inexorable bluntness. It is one of his most striking qualities.

He is a Catholic, but when a Belgian labor leader was trying to convince him of the desirability of a separation between Catholic and Socialist unions, he replied, sharply:

"Ideology is balony. There can be no ideological differences among real trade unionists."

He balked John L. Lewis' try for a seat on the AFL Executive Council by attacking Lewis' opposition to the provision of the Taft-Hartley Act which requires union leaders to take a non-Communist oath. One of his blasts contained the words "stinking America-haters who love Moscow."

Struggles between unions are like family fights and the unions resent criticism from the outside. But when Meany was publicly questioned about the New York waterfront ruckus, he said frankly:

"I don't mind saying we are greatly disturbed by it. We are disturbed by the fact that such a lawless condition could prevail in the city of New York. It isn't a case of the union using gangsters; it's a case of gangsters using the union."

Unlike some labor executives, he has not tried to sugar-coat, for labor, the results of the last presidential elections. "We didn't do too well," he said.

After the election, he had a conference with President Eisenhower. He said he promised the President his co-operation. Later, reporting the conversation, Meany said:

"And I also will add that we are prepared to defend ourselves if there should be those who feel that they would like to push labor back instead of having labor move forward."

He concedes, without an equivocation, that the job of achieving unity between the AFL and CIO is going to be tough. He says the odds are against it.

At the same time, nothing could have been more typical of Meany than the speed with which he set the wheels in motion as his first action after his election last November.

He reactivated a nine-man committee to carry on the talks. It took less than a minute, in a hotel room conference with Walter Reuther, new president of the CIO, to come to an agreement on method.

His action was interpreted in some quarters as holding out an olive branch to the CIO. If so, it was something of a departure from the position taken by Meany's predecessor, Green. One of Green's often repeated statements was that it was up to the CIO to "return to the house of labor."

For years, one of Meany's major preoccupations has been the strengthening of labor organizations in other countries. He went abroad on numerous occasions in the course of this work. He is an implacable enemy of the Communists and he says the free trade union is the strongest barrier to Communists in Europe.

He takes credit for driving a wedge in the French confederation of unions, heavily dominated by the Communists in the years immediately after the war. Meany says the non-Communist organization which he helped to set up represents about 40 per cent of French workmen now.

"I am proud to say that we took the money of America's workers and sent it over to France in order to free from Communist domination the workers of France who wanted to be set free," he said.

He was one of the first labor leaders to denounce the Communist-dominated World Federation of Labor.

Meany is a New York Irishman. His accent is New York and his wit is Irish.

For all his natural blunt directness, he can be plausible and persuasive on or off a public platform. In his five years in Albany, Meany got more favorable legislation for the AFL than it had had in all its previous history.

He can deadpan a wisecrack as he did when the chairman of a meeting introduced him as a plumber. "Any of you people who ever paid a plumber's bill know you can't underestimate the power of a plumber," he said.

Meany is a conservative dresser, except for his vests, which are sometimes pearl gray or light brown.

He is seldom without a cigar. He plays gin rummy, makes two or three duck hunting expeditions a year and is a better than average golfer. On a good day, he is in the low 80s.

He is married and has three daughters, one of whom works in his office. His home now is in Bethesda, Maryland, just across the line from the District of Columbia.

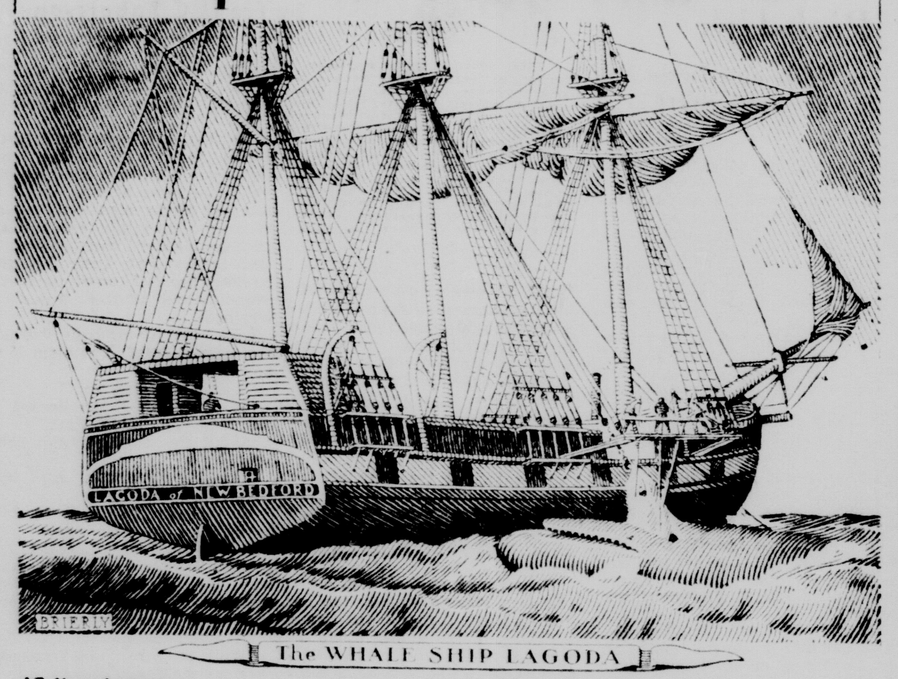

Since his election to the AFL presidency, he has been hopping around the country like an overworked salesman. An associate said, with considerable accuracy:

"It would be tough to find a busier man in America."

Fuel gas is being produced experimentally from trimmings, cores and other fruit wastes in pear-canning factories.

The WHALE SHIP LAGODA

AP Newsfeatures

This ship was built in 1826 by Seth and Samuel Foster of Scituate, Mass. In 1841, Jonathan Bourne of New Bedford bought her and changed her rig to that of a bark and fitted her out as a whaler, the most noticable change being a super structure at her stern, consisting of a house on the starboard side containing a galley and one on the port, containing two lockers with a pair of stairs between them leading to the officers' quarters below. Both houses and the space between were roofed over with two openings cut in the forward part to enable the helmsman to see the luff of the sail. She was the most successful of Bourne's many whalers and, in her 12 voyages of two or three years each, made a net profit of over $650,000. A model (half size, said to be the largest ship model in the world) is now in The Bourne Whaling Museum in New Bedford, given by Miss Emily H. Bourne as a memorial to her famous father.

Poison Ivy Can Be Beautiful— But Don't Touch

"Poison Ivy can be beautiful, and it does contain cholophyll, but — stay away from it," so warns J. R. Amos, M. D., Director of the Missouri Division of Health. Summer in Missouri is a gorgeous season of vacations, picnics, fishing trips, and all outdoor activities. The parks, rivers, lakes and highways invite the family to explore their vistas of beauty, or to relax in the cool shade of enticing foliage. But, be careful! Poison Ivy is a native plant of almost all states; it does not have any specifically typical habitat and may be lurking just around the next exciting curve. And Poison Ivy can certainly turn enjoyment into discomfort or, even into a severe illness.

Dr. Amos advises every possible precaution to prevent poison ivy. The best way is to avoid the plant which may grow upright as a bush or in the form of a vine. Its leaves are in groups of three leaflets with either plain or notched margins which change in color from green to a bright red in the fall. Its beauty is enhanced by a small greenish flower that produces pea-sized berries of pale green which turn white when mature.

Turn on a "Don't Touch" sign, if and when such a plant is encountered; also, beware of dogs or other animals that may have been in contact with the plant. They can pass the irritating chemical to persons who pet or rub them.

A precautionary stand-by for the outdoor person, is a prompt warm shower with a good lathering of your favorite bath soap; followed by a thorough rinse. If, however, in spite of all care, a case of poisoning does develop, consult a physician and follow his advice.

Only a few short minutes ago, the man you see in the picture above was handed the golden keys to his 1953 Cadillac—and now he's off on that first delightful journey behind the wheel.

And as he leans back against the deep, soft cushion, and looks out over that proud hood into the roadway beyond . . . well, he knows that he's done something for himself!

He knows it just from the way he feels there in the driver's seat—rested, relaxed, and at peace with the world . . . completely confident that he has made the wisest possible choice of a motor car.

He senses it in the marvelous way the car handles and drives and rides . . . so effortless and smooth and quiet that it's a joy and an inspiration just to hold the wheel in his hands.

And he knows it, too, from the feeling of pride and satisfaction he enjoys as he looks forward to the delight of his family and the approval of his acquaintances and friends.

And how the miles and the years will bear him out in his conviction!

Let him arrive at a distinguished hotel . . . or an exclusive club . . . and he will find that his Cadillac constitutes the perfect "letter of introduction."

Rhee Has Suffered and Fought Lifetime for Korea's Liberty

WASHINGTON — Dr. Syngman Rhee, our willful, sometimes cantankerous friend in South Korea, may be causing truce headaches, but when you look back over the vista of his 78 years you can understand why.

During those years he has been beaten with bamboo rods daily for seven months. He has had oil paper wrapped around his wrists and then set on fire. He has had his fingers mashed so horribly that even today he blows on them to keep them warm. He has had to wear a 20-pound wooden cangue around his neck and sit with his feet and hands locked in the stocks.

He has spent seven years in prison, 41 years in exile, and has had a $300,000 Japanese price put on his head. He has been rebuffed. He has been disheartened. But he has never ceased fighting for the liberty of the barren little country which is the focus of the world today.

And having staged that fight, having suffered such punishment, he is not, at the age of 78, easily persuaded to surrender.

I knew Rhee when he lived in exile in Washington, president of the so-called "Korean Republic," then occupied by soldiers of Japan, and which no one ever thought could become free again—no one, that is, except Rhee.

Rhee's Diplomatic Record

The President-in-exile had come to this country at the age of 27 during the Portsmouth, N. H., conference called to settle the Russo- Japanese war. Rhee, a young Republican radical recently out of prison, personally urged President Theodore Roosevelt that the Portsmouth treaty recognize Korea as a free and independent state. Nevertheless, Article I of the treaty turned Korea over to Japan. Rights of the small nations at that time was not popular.

Rhee, however, battled on. He had become a Christian, had written a book, "The Spirit of Independence," while in jail. Now he studied at Harvard and Princeton, came to know Woodrow Wilson, the attended the Versailles Conference, where once again he placed the plea of a small nation before the great powers.

And once again, despite his acquaintance with Wilson, he failed.

Dr. Rhee sometimes jokingly credits me with responsibility for his marriage to Francesca Donner, an Austrian lady he met while pleading his cause before the old League of Nations.

My small role in the marriage was merely the fact that when Rhee got the usual State Department runaround regarding a passport visa for Fraulein Donner to enter this country, I called the matter to Cordell Hull's attention. He promptly cut red tape. The Rhees were married shortly thereafter and she has been beside him through the heartaches and headaches of Korea ever since.

Conquering Hero

As the Pacific phase of World War II neared its end, Dr. Syngman Rhee was living in Hawaii, as near as possible to the beloved country for which he had suffered and fought so long. After 40 years of battling for independence Korea's great chance had come.

He returned shortly after V-J day, to be hailed as a modern-day savior. Every political party welcomed him, offered him its support and asked him to become President — even the Communists.

Perhaps the seeds of Korea's present-day troubles started when he refused to accept communist cooperation in his cabinet. Rhee even differed with Gen. John Horge, U. S. Commander in Korea, who wanted a compromise between the Communists and right-wing parties. But Rhee refused, started to battle the Communists from the very start.

Bitterest disappointment was the line drawn straight across Korea, cutting his liberated country in two. True, this was a matter of military expediency, arranged by Russian and American troop commanders to prevent their armies from clashing in the field.

But for a man who had spent his life working, hoping, dreaming of free Korea, it was a bitter compromise to swallow just the same.

President Eisenhower is reported quite irate at President Rhee of late. And you can understand why. He feels the old gentleman has been inexcusably stubborn, went back on his written promise to Eisenhower that he would cooperate. He feels that Rhee jeopardized world peace, and for a time U. S. military experts were figuring on how they could overthrow Rhee by working through the American - trained South Korean Army.

However, you can't really be sore at a man who has remained in jail seven years for a cause he believes in, who has had to kneel on split bamboo so long that his knees were perforated and he could hardly walk. You can't be too sore at a man who has fought longer to bring self-government to one rocky, isolated portion of the orient than any other man living today.

World War II Barracks

In his laudable drive to cut expenses, Secretary of Defense Wilson has ordered a resurvey of temporary barracks left over from World War II. As a result, several camps have swept out the old, evacuated barracks, slapped on a coat of paint and ordered GIs to move in with their families.

This, however, has worked an unforseen hardship on some GIs who have been forced to sell expensive trailers which the Army had encouraged them to buy.

Over 125,000 GI families have been living in trailers, for the support of which the army pays them the regular quarters allowance. Now, under Wilson's new order to use World War II barracks, this allowance has been withdrawn.

As a rseult some army regulars at Fort Bragg, N. C., have resigned rather than take a loss on their trailers, and Secretary of the Army Stevens has asked Fort Bragg to hold up the order moving GI families from trailers into barracks, until he can look into it.

Odds and Ends By News Staff

A small group of children were playing on a porch one hot afternoon recently and the woman next door opened her window and went on with her ironing, paying no attention to the children.

Then an excited young voice rang out: "Ambulance, this is an operation. We have to get to the hospital."

The woman looked out the window to see a five year old girl put up a toy telephone.

Then she saw in the porch swing a small child and the little girl was using a stick to operate.

— H. L.

Kathy caught her first fish and she was so thrilled and so excited she didn't know what to do with herself.

"My heart just broke", said the little girl rushing up to her mother.

"What do you mean — your heart just broke?" questioned the mother.

"It did, Mother", insisted the child, "When I caught that fish my heart just broke, I could feel all the little pieces and it even went up into my throat." — H. L

"We're going to Marshall to go swimming," someone told the small boy of a Sedalia family.

The little boy liked the idea, he liked to go swimming anywhere, but he was a little puzzled at the place they were going. Unable to stand it any longer he went to his mother and asked: "Why are we going to the sheriff's house to swim?"

Marshal or sheriff—it was all the same to him—but it bothered him why they had to pick out a swimming pool that belonged to an officer of the law.

It was one of those big picnics where everybody loads up baskets and goes somewhere to eat out in the open.

The table was groaning with food and there were several dishes of potato salad.

One young man edged up to his sister as they were filling up their plates and said: "I'd advise you to eat some of this potato salad, because my wife made it," and he dug down in the potato salad nearest him.

Well, his thought was fine, and his loyalty to his wife was wonderful, it was quite a compliment to her ability as a cook—but he just had the wrong dish of potato salad, it wasn't his wife's.

A group of girls at a church meeting were washing and drying dishes after a big party and there seemed to be an awful lot of dishes.

One girl just couldn't seem to keep a dry dish towel as she wiped dishes and chatted away—in fact she was using three to every one of the other girls.

"I never saw anyone get dishtowels wet so fast," said one of the girls. "I do believe you are just putting them in the dishpan, and getting them wet that way—I don't see how you could get them so wet wiping dishes."

Everybody laughed and the girl insisted she was merely drying dishes with them—then—a few minutes later one of the girls looked over at her and there she was—standing over the dishpan talking and wiping a dish with one end of her dish towel while the other end of the towel was flopping around in the dishpan, soaking up the water.

Massacre Mountains

THE STORY: Pete Morrison, a scout, believes he has learned the whereabouts of Betty, the long-lost daughter of Nate Wilkinson, leader of a California-bound wagon train. Betty, unaware that Zad Barnes, a renegade, kidnaped her when she was a child, is living at Barnes' ranch near Two Rivers. Meanwhile, another woman, Cass Dean, has joined the train. She is Pete's former sweetheart, with whom he quarreled just before the War Between the States.

• • •

THE presence of Cass Dean meant trouble—she had always meant trouble for Pete—yet he found himself eager to see her, while at the same time wishing she were a thousand miles away.

He had to see her, for he knew that she would see him one way or another if her mind was made up.

He rode into the town of Echo Junction early in the morning, although he expected to have to wait. She had always been a late riser. Meanwhile, Nate would be fuming.

He stopped at the hotel where she was staying to ask for her, and was told that she was having breakfast in the dining room. He went on back, and saw her alone at a table at the side of a room.

She didn't see him at once, and he had a chance to study her. If she had changed in the five years since he had seen her it was for the better, and she had always been a beautiful woman; tall, with glorious chestnut hair, and almost classic features.

She looked up as Pete strode toward her table, and a smile broke over her beautiful face. "Pete Morrison!" she exclaimed. "Pete, it's wonderful to see you." She stood up, extended her hand, and then as though it was the natural thing to do, kissed him.

Pete felt his face growing hot. The last time they had met she had been ready to slap him. "You're looking fine, Cass," he said.

"Aren't you going to say that you're glad to see me?"

"No."

She laughed. "What a man! Well, sit down and share my breakfast, and we'll talk about old times."

As they sat down Pete cast a glance around the dining room. He saw a man turn his face, but the fellow was a trifle slow. He was one of the men Pete had sat at table with only a few days ago at Zad Barnes' trading post at Two Rivers! Pete knew then that he had been followed, and that every move of his would be watched.

Cass touched his hand. "What's the matter, Pete? You seem to be upset?"

"I am—at seeing you."

"It wasn't me," she denied. "I can read your mind, Pete."

"What the devil are you doing here, Cass?"

"Looking for a man. And, lo! I have found him."

"I thought things were over between us five years ago."

"That stupid war! I tried to forget you, Pete, but I couldn't. Anyway, the war is over now and there's no North and South. There's nothing to keep us apart."

"Are you sure of that, Cass?"

"Well, is there? Don't you still care for me?"

This time it was he who reached for her hand, but only to soften his words. "I really don't know, Cass. You're the most beautiful woman I've ever known, but we both have changed. I know I have. And I seem to remember that although we thought we were in love we never seemed to agree on anything. Probably we still won't agree."

• • •

SHE said with a somewhat fixed smile. "Beware of the woman scorned, Pete. But you've got a point. We have changed. We've grown up. I've lost my illusions. I know what hardships are now, and I can understand your problems."

Pete looked at her critically. She was beautifully dressed, as always, and those soft white hands didn't indicate hardship. He asked, "What have you been doing?"

"I was a nurse during the war. My mother died, and my two brothers were killed. I'm alone in the world, Pete, except for a married sister. We lost our money, too."

"You don't look as if you were broke."

"I'm not—exactly, but I don't have much."

"Look, Cass, why don't you go back home? This country is no place for a girl like you. Maybe we can work things out—later."

"I've got no home to go to. Even if you throw me over again—"

"I like that. You threw me over."

"Well, even if we don't make a go of it I'm staying in the West. There's opportunity here. You can't stop me."

"I can try. Look Cass, I'm leaving here right away. Believe me, there is nothing out here for you. Wilkinson and I are going to a place that is inhabited only by outlaws and Indians, and there'll be danger every minute. I couldn't take you down there if I wanted to."

• • •

SHE wanted to know why, and he told her about Zad Barnes and his stronghold at Two Rivers. "That man over yonder," he pointed, "is an outlaw, and he followed me up here."

"I'm still going," she said.

"Not with me," Pete said grimly.

"Then with Wilkinson. And if not with him I'll go alone. I've got to make you understand, Pete, that I'm just as tough an anybody else. I can stand anything that you can stand."

Pete stood up. "I've got to be going, Cass. I'm sorry that I can't see things your way, but this is no country for a woman like you—and it's the only country for me." He held out his hand, and after an instant of hesitation she took it.

"I'll be seeing you," she said.

He walked out, and he was no sooner out of sight than Cass Dean got up and walked over to the man he had said was one of Zad Barnes' outlaws.

Owner vs. Union, Brother Vs. Brother In Mine War

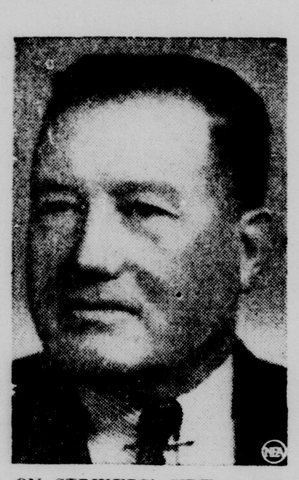

By WADE JONES
NEA Staff Correspondent
(Second of two dispatches.)

WIDEN, W. Va. —The shooting war here between the non-union Elk River Coal and Lumber Co. and several hundred striking coal miners has all the tragic qualities of the mine battles which have plagued this hill country for years.

More than 70 cases of violence — murder, shootings, beatings, time bombs, dynamitings — have been reported in the last eight months.

For every act of violence there have been three threats of it, and the tension in this remote forest fastness is so vibrant you can almost see and feel it — like the damp in the dark valleys and the cold in the miles of mine tunnels under the hills.

Families are split and in several homes it's brother against brother and father against son—some out on strike and some sticking with the company.

ON STRIKERS' SIDE is Bill Blizzard, district leader of the United Mine Workers.

Even the principals in the case are of the classic mine war mold. On one side is a patrician-nosed, 71-year-old Bostonian named J. G. Bradley, who rules the 80,000-acre coal and lumber empire of the Elk River company with a steel hand. He has battled unions often in his long reign as president and he hates them like he hates the copperheads and the rattlers in the hills.

His 95-year-old mother, still living, is a member of the wealthy Cameron family of Harrisburg, Pa., which owns the Elk River company almost entirely — coal mines, sawmills, banks, stores, railroads, bridges, houses, roads, even towns like Widen.

On the other side is Bill Blizzard, head of District 17 of the United Mine Workers, which is backing the strikers with food, clothing and medical expenses. "We'll give 'em as much as they need as long as they need it," says Blizzard.

If Bradley and the Cameron family are the archetypes of the stern, non-resident mine owners, Blizzard is the classic model of the rough and ready union leader.

In the bloody mine wars of the 1920s, when thousands of miners and owners' men fought in nearby Logan and Mingo counties ad federal troops and even airplanes were called in to quell the battle, Blizzard was a ringleader.

In that battle, Blizzard was acquitted on a charge of helping create an uprising against the state of West Virginia.

ON COMPANY SIDE is 71-year-old J. G. Bradley, here talking with state trooper at the embattled Widen, W. Va., mine.

Blizzard's mother, who is 88, and lives on nearby Cabin Creek, was arrested in the '20s for helping the miners.

Union officials say that more than 500 men walked off the job last September and that about 225 are still on strike. The rest have gotten jobs elsewhere or gone back to work.

The men still on strike are to begin picketing again any day now, and when they do more violence can occur in clashes with company men.

Widen is a dismal, dirty - looking place of unpainted houses, few flowers, and little grass. There are 300 houses and 1200 people in the town. The houses are all company-owned, and a four - room one without bath rents for $9 a month, according to Eugene George, an administrative assistant at the company.

About 30 or 40 men are sitting around the warehouse this particular afternoon, dressed in their blackened work clothes, with lamps on their hats.

Some of them will talk to you, but they don't seem to like to.

Doyle Waggoner, a member of the "bargaining committee" of the company dominated Employes League of Widen Miners, says miners here have fewer layoffs and get "a little higher pay" than at the average union mine.

Of the 15 cars parked nearby, three have bullet holes in the windows or bodies.

Tom Williams, a mine foreman, isn't too optimistic about the future. "If the union brings men in here to picket from the outside—we'll have trouble—it'll be strictly him and I and the hair and eyeballs will fly."

George, the company official, said some of the guards and "permanent posse" now on duty at the mine were brought in from the outside.

Union officials grant that the Elk River company pays a little higher than the UMW scale, but charge that the company's health and welfare program is badly administered.

Denver Browning, a miner for the company, festified before a governor's committee investigating the strike, that he once smashed his hand operating a power machine in the mine and that a company official called him in and told him he would be fired if he was injured again.

Browning also testified that while at work one day he received a call about the condition of his new-born baby in a hospital. But he said his boss "just said for me to come by the hospital that evening, that it wasn't urgent."

When he got off work he went to the hospital. "They wanted to send it to Charleston General for an operation and said it may be too late," he testified. "Next morning the baby died."

Tony George, of Widen, testified that a company official offered him $20 a day to help break up a committee that was elected to try to establish a new bargaining agent for the miners.

"He (the official) said those men were dangerous to the company," George testified. "He said they were the flame and get rid of the flame and you would get rid of the fire."

Kyes----Pentagon's Trouble Shooter

His Big Business Methods Horrify the Bureaucrats

WASHINGTON — Roger Kyes, the new Deputy Secretary of Defense, appears determined to make himself a classic case of whether a successful business executive also makes a good government official.

The effort has made him one of the most controversial figures of the new Eisenhower team. His critics call him "Jolly Roger." Although only a member of the unofficial "Little Cabinet," his name is becoming better known than many of the new department heads.

Since moving into the Pentagon as Charles E. Wilson's right hand man, a job he also had at General Motors at $85,000 a year, Kyes has doggedly operated like a trouble-shooting business expert trying to save a sagging corporation.

He has yet to make his first concession to the old bureaucratic philosophy which holds that fighting red tape only tangles you in it tighter. One of Kyes' very first moves was to sweep out most of his predecessor's staff, more thoroughly than Wilson himself dared attempt.

Then, to the horror of old-line bureaucrats, he ordered the big inter-office "squawk box" ripped out — one of the sacred symbols of federal rank which links the boss with the underlings at the push of a button.

"When I have something to say to somebody," he explains, "I like to do it face to face."

Next he ordered all the old-type Pentagon light bulbs in his office changed to the variety used to illuminate the work of GM draftsmen.

One of the first days in office, within earshot of the Pentagon building superintendent, he remarked that the walls were too green. Next day when Kyes showed up he found a crew of painters ready to redecorate in blue. But he sent them scurrying back to their shop with the admonishment that the cost would be too much for the taxpayer.

At 47, Kyes is a giant, six-feet four inches and 225 pounds, with a fondness for neat double breasted suits which he seldom buttons. He speaks softly, pleasantly, and appears completely relaxed and easy-going, which fools you sometimes.

One story concerns a three-star general in Kyes' office who was arguing heatedly about a budget matter. Kyes listened just so long, walked over to the general and began waggling the officer's stars with the reported remark:

"These things are pretty loose. In the car business we make sure that ornamental metal is very securely fastened."

The general left in complete accord with Kyes.

ROGER KYES: The general's stars seemed "pretty loose."

Kyes likes to tell how Lincoln carried a pocket knife around to give to the first man he found who was uglier than himself. Kyes says he does the same thing and still has the knife.

Before Kyes set up shop in the Pentagon, rumor had pegged him as a successful, tough, sometimes ruthless executive who would do Wilson's quarterbacking. The rumor appears reliable. Kyes spends at least two hours a day with Wilson, in and out of the adjoining office without knocking or being announced.

The three major new Pentagon policy changes are mostly Kyes' babies — the proposed reorganization, new budget and limited mobilization base plan. None of them has won Kyes any wide endearment in the Pentagon.

However, there is a steadily widening circle of Kyes boosters. One fan tells of a recent decision made by Kyes, which a cabinet member predicted would irk his former GM associates. Kyes replied:

"Remember? I've changed bosses. And I sold all my GM stock."

By odd chance Kyes lives in the same suite in the fashionable Westchester Apartments once occupied by General Electric's Chas. E. Wilson. He lives alone. His wife and four daughters stayed home in Bloomfield Hills, Mich.

The consensus is that Kyes' unswerving big business methods approach to his new job will either make him a tremendous reputation in the Pentagon or bust him. That's the way Kyes apparently wants it. He says he has never been a half-way man.

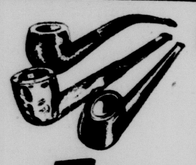

RETURNS FROM CRUISE—Tommy Joe Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Miller, route 4, Sedalia, hs just returned to the United States from a six-months Mediterranean cruise. In a telephone call to his mother from Norfolk, Va., while still on the USS Newport News, he told of receiving his promotion to fireman and that he will be home on a 15-day leave June 17.

Oyster beds now can be located through the use of depth-recording equipment. The portable instrument sends out sound waves that are echoed back through the water from the bottom and recorded. By checking the differences in the intensities of the recordings, the kind of bottom surface is determined.

Sedalian Joins Air Force After Train Upsets Draft

Kenneth E. Smith, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. I. Smith, 714 East 13th, is now in the Air Force, but the only way he escaped being drafted into the army was by being hit by a freight train. He doesn't recommend the method.

Kenneth was to be inducted April 21. He had received his Presidential greetings and his orders to report for a bus trip to the Kansas City induction center. He never made it.

On the evening of April 3, Kenneth had taken a friend to the Green Ridge Presbyterian Church. He was driving downtown to a cafe to wait until church services were over, when the freight train entered his life and nearly cut it short.

He crossed the MKT tracks in his car without hearing the approaching train. The train struck his car on the right rear portion and flipped it to one side. Kenneth was tossed out of the car and into a ditch. A cut on his head had to be stitched, and he was scratched and bruised in many places. The car was demolished.

A short stay in Bothwell Hospital had its reward, however. Kenneth's induction order was cancelled. Now he is stationed at Parks Air Force Base, California, for basic training. He enlisted Friday for four years.

Kenneth is 20 and was graduated from Smith-Cotton High School in 1951. From then until the auto-train wreck, he worked at the Missouri Pacific diesel shops in Kansas City.

Little Leaguers Show Fans Everything In Book Friday

Rotary 9 Sets Three Records In Shutout Win

Three records were set by the Rotary team in the Little League major leagues Friday night as Nichols hurled an 8-0, two hit shutout for the team over the Jaycees.

It was the first time in the two year history of the Little League in Sedalia that a hurler got a shut-out in his first mound appearance; it was the first time a team had accomplished the feat of getting two shut-out wins in three games and it was the first time any pitcher had been backed by errorless play in the field. Not a Rotary player made a miscue.

Nichols was the third hurler for the Rotary this season and was the third to win as the team kept its place of leadership in Nationals as the only undefeated team.

In the opening game it was Herrick on the mound for Rotary and he tossed up a no-hit, no-run affair against Kiwanis for an 8-0 decision. Burford hurled the team's second victory, an 11-9 win from the Jaycees.

When they are not pitching, Nichols is a first baseman, Burford the catcher and Herrick the shortstop.

Besides having good pitching and good fielding, the Rotary squad did some right fair hitting Friday night, collecting nine hits including homers by Burford and Miller and doubles by Burford, Morgan and Nichols.

While Wilson and Bredwell, the Jaycee hurlers, were hit hard by Rotary, they also chalked up 11 strike outs. Wilson was the loser.

Rotary scored two run in the second and got 8 in the third when both 4-baggers were hit. The game was called at the end of the 5th under rules which allow a game to be called at that point if one team is leading by nine or more runs.

Pitcher's Thrills

By CARL ERSKINE
Brooklyn Dodgers' Pitcher

Some people might think my no-hit, no-run game against the Chicago Cubs was my biggest thrill. I walked only one man, the pitcher, and that came when it started to rain and I hurried by pitches. But we had a four-run lead right from the first inning.

It was a big thrill, but pitching in the World Series was my biggest thrill. Even to be able to pitch in a World Series is a thrill. But to win is a bigger thrill.

It was in the fifth game of the Series against the Yankees last fall in Yankee Stadium. The 11th inning victory gave us a 3-2 edge in games.

The tremendous spirit of the club was great. In the fifth inning I allowed five runs. I thought sure Manager Charley Dressen would take me out. That was another thing that made me feel great, when he showed he had confidence in me before 70,000 people. I got the last 19 Yankees in a row and we won it in the 11th on Duke Snider's tremendous double.

That game overshadowed my no-hitter. It is one I'll always remember. It was my fifth wedding anniversary. I was reminded of it in a wire from a Texas friend.

As it turned out it was the fifth inning of the fifth game. I had allowed five hits and five runs and the game ended at 5:05. Guess 5 is my lucky number.

St. Joseph Wins 6-1, Over Ft. Smith Nine

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., June 13 (AP)—Al Datfner hurled a four-hitter tonight to pilot St. Joseph to a 6-1 victory over Ft. Smith—Van Buren and snap the Cardinals' losing streak.

Until tonight's victory, league-leading St. Joseph had dropped three games in a row.

Atlanta Likes The Brownies But Not Veeck

ATLANTA, June 13 (AP) — An Atlanta sports editor suggested today that the St. Louis Browns, minus owner Bill Veeck, shift their franchise here.

Furman Bisher of the Atlanta Constitution, citing the consistently good attendance at games of the Southern Association Crackers, called the city "one of the golden franchises in minor league baseball.

In his daily column, Bisher said Atlanta outdrew both Baltimore and Milwaukee last year "with one of the worst Cracker draws in years." Atlanta's paid attendance was 232,994. Baltimore, International League city to which Veeck tried to carry the Browns last winter, attracted 153,828. Milwaukee drew 195,839 with the American Association pennant winner but has already drawn nearly 300,000 fans with the major league Braves.

Bisher said his invitation did not include Veeck, asserting that Earl Mann, president of the Crackers, "belongs with baseball in Atlanta."

"There is enough money to form an Atlanta syndicate and buy the Browns from Veeck," Bisher wrote. "The price could be raised without any great hassle."

The Atlanta park's seating capacity of 14,000 could easily be increased to 30,000, he continued, by double-decking the grandstand and adding seats in right field and along the left field foul line.

Elks Outscore Kiwanis, 17-14 In Wild Contest

In direct contrast to the first contest on Friday night's Little League Majors schedule, the second encounter was the wildest, most free-scoring of the year. In it the Elks outscored the Kiwanis, 17-14, in a game that had to be called at the end of the fourth inning in compliance with the 10 p.m. curfew.

The losing club outhit the winners by a startling 10-5, but wildness by Kiwanis moundsmen more than made up for the deficit.

In the third frame alone, the Elks, playing the waiting game, drew ten consecutive bases on balls as the Kiwanis paraded four pitchers to the hill. The Elks counted nine runs without a hit.

Garrison with two for three, including a double, was the leading batter for the winners, while Dodson, Jim Mateja and Kelly all got two for the losers. Both of Kelly's blows were two-baggers.

Smith was the winning pitcher and Meredith absorbed the loss.

Milers Hold Fan Interest In NCAA Meet

LINCOLN, Neb., June 13 (AP) — Nebraskans are people who can get mighty interested in mile runners and muscle men.

That's why the lads who run the mile and the lads with the iron ball, the discus, etc., can expect a top amount of attention when the National Collegiate Athletic Association annual track and field meet is run off here next Friday and Saturday evening.

Interest in the milers dates way back to when Gil Dodds, a Nebraskan, was the nation's top man at the mile. And the NCAA holds a special attraction because the last time it was held here the fans saw a home state lad—Bob Ginn—win in a lunging finish.

Now again the mile has captured the fans. It would have, anyway, no matter where the meet was held in view of the 4:02.4. That Wes Santee of Kansas has to his credi.. Most Nebraskans can review him as a sort of an adopted son in this meet—and they're expected to turn out in big numbers for the mile run.

"They're talking about seeing the four-minute mile—with Santee the Santa who delivers it. Nebraska track coach Ed Weir views it thusly:

The four minute mile demands competition that presses the runner at least three-quarters of the way, a near perfect track and good weather conditions. He suggests Santee will have all that here.

He points out that such milers as Charles Capozzoli, Georgetown, and Joe LaPierre, Georgetown, will be around to argue the matter, as well as a host of others. Actually, 44 milers are entered. But Capozzoli with 4:07.8 and LaPierre with 4:08 are closest to Santee speed.

The Nebraska track has long been recognized as one of the better ones. And Weir says it will be in its swiftest shape for Santee and the others.

As for the weather it is naturally up to the whims of Mother Nature. But Weir contends the four minute miler will need a wind break. The Nebraska track is a perfect oval and with the meet a twi-night affair, at the hours the wind normally dies down, the wind break may be there.

Coe Posts 69 In His Tuneup For Trans-Miss

KANSAS CITY, June 13 (AP) — Many of the participants in the Trans-Mississippi golden jubilee golf tournament engaged in practice rounds today at the Kansas City Country Club, where the tourney will get underway Monday.

Charles Coe, Ardmore, Okla., defending champion, posted a one-under par 69.

Others will tour the course tomorrow and the first of the two-day 36-hole qualifying will start Monday. In addition to the championship flight, there will be the president's flight, vice-president's flight and a senior flight for golfers 55 years old and over.

Match play in all flights will start Wednesday. Second round matches will be Thursday and the third round Friday. The quarter-finals and semi-finals will be next Saturday and the 36-hole final event will be next Sunday.

More than 100 golfers registered today.

Joe Tom Blair III, Missouri state amateur champion who competed in the U. S. Open, is expected to arrive tomorrow for the tournament.

Sports Scraps

(By D. KELLY SCRUTON)

HOT as it is there is activity going around in this section of the state which can keep everybody busy seeing something. Down at Warsaw the Lions Club boat races; up here right under our noses the Sedalia Junior Chamber of Commerce Rodeo; out at the local parks, swimming, and tonight the Sedalia Chiefs meet Mexico under the lights at Liberty Park. Hot as it is—maybe if you attend some of these sessions and visit the parks you'll probably be a lot cooler than if you stay at home under a fan—air conditioning the exception.

Four performances of the rodeo—three already past and filled with plenty of excitement—the final at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the State Fair grounds. The rodeo hasn't been drawing very large crowds the first three nights, but this afternoon with the final in the five major events, with the big money at stake rodeo fans can expect to see plenty of action on the part of the cowboys working to gain points which will go to their credit toward the world titles at the end of the season.

Down at Warsaw on the Lake of the Ozarks there will be more than 150 boats with their pilots out on the water battling in eight events for prize monies. The Lions of that community are endeavoring to bring Warsaw back into the limelight as far as water sports are concerned, and today's program is the first of several in their plans.

(Incidentally I am supposed to be an Honorary Admiral at the races. Sorry boys I tried to find a sailors suit, but they seem to come in smaller sizes. I'll try and make it for a short time anyway—however I am strictly a "dry land sailor.")

The Sedalia Chiefs go against Mexico to whom they lost a tough game recently. They will be after three straight victories among the next three tilts, which includes the now league leading Boonville Lions. The game tonight isn't going to be a run away for either aggression, but the Chiefs can come out with a tie for the first half of the Central Missouri League if they can beat Boonville, Mexico and the Brookfield Bombers, and if Boonville gets stepped on by one of their opponents.

Swimming is swell at Liberty Park and Hubbard Park.

NOPE, it isn't the ribbing Mrs. Homer Baker has been getting about her horse taking a bath in Flat Creek with her recently that has caused her to give-up riding. I'm told it is just too hot. She'll be back as soon as the cool breezes start blowing again—she's not taking any chances of her mount hitting for the creek to get cooled off again.

THE annual Sedalia Jaycee golf tournament date hasn't been set, but the organization is anticipating an entry list of between 10 and 15, possibly more. The two top winners go to Moberly to play in the annual State Tournament the first week in August.

Now we aren't showing any favoritism, but our Frankie Reynolds who won here last year expects to be in the top bracket when the scores are counted. He's been practicing during the day time and talking it up at night.

The proposed Junior Championship tournament which the Sedalia Country Club is planning should create more interest among the young golfers. The date has noe been set for this tournament.

The top winner in the State Jaycee tournament will get an all-expense trip to the National Jaycee tournament in Ann Arbor, Mich. The next three are eligible to enter but pay their own expenses.

JEFFERSON School girls are still gay over the softball championship they won during the grade school softball tournament. Why we were never given the information on it, I'll never understand—we are sorry from the bottom of our hearts, because if ever a group of kids deserved credit they did.

They took all five games of the tournament. Playing the game like the New York Yankees, they won two decisions in the last inning, won another in two extra frames. Of course they had a great pitching team in Rita Napier and Dorothy Pointer, who were also the leading hitters on the team coached by George Thompson, principal of the school.

The championship tilt was a game played with Broadway. If you don't think they played like champions—the Yankees—give this a thought. Broadway and Jefferson entered the contest undefeated, but in the final frame of the extra two innings did the trick for the Northeast Sedalia girls.

Sorry kids I'm late with the pat on the back but you deserve every bit of it.

Milwaukee Regains Top In National

Yanks Near Another Record As They Win 16th Straight

NEW YORK, June 13 (AP)—The New York Yankees ran their winning streak to 16 games today, opening up an 8½-game lead in the American League, and Milwaukee edged into a first place tie with idle Brooklyn in a 5-4 victory over Pittsburgh in the only National League game.

Eddie Lopat won his seventh straight for the Yanks with relief help from Ray Scarborough in the last two innings to trim his old "cousins" from Cleveand, 9-4. The chunky lefty has a lifetime 37-9 record against the Tribe.

Closing in on the American League record of 19 straight, held jointly by the 1906 Chicago White Sox and the 1947 Yankees, the Yanks drove Bob Feller to cover before he could get anybody out in the fourth inning. Homers by George Strickland, Jim Hegan and Harry Simpson, with a man on, accounted for all Cleveland runs.

The fifth straight New York Victory over Cleveland gave Manager Casey Stengel the biggest lead of his Yankee managerial career. The two clubs concluded their series with a doubleheader fomorrow.

Nobody is close to Cleveland either. There is a three-game gap between the Indians and the third place Boston Red Sox who trail the Yanks by 11½ after losing to Chicago, 5-2. Sherm Lollar's grand slam homer was the big blow of a five-run sixth inning against Maury McDermott. Mike Fornieles went the route for the White Sox.

Jim Delsing's bases loaded homer off Bob Porterfield helped Detroit top Washington, 7-6, dropping the Senators into a fourth place tie with Chicago. The Tigers scored five runs in the third. Ned Garver earned his fifth victory with the aid of Hal Newhouser in the ninth.

Milwaukee pushed over a run in the ninth on a walk, sacrifice and Joe Adcock's single to shade Pittsburgh. Lou Burdette, who finished up for Warren Spahn, was the winner over Paul LaPalme although the Pirates got 12 hits, to seven for the Braves. Danny O'Connell hit two home runs for the losers.

Brooklyn's game with Chicago was rained out in the second inning with the Dodgers leading 2-1, so Milwaukee closed the half game gap to tie for the lead.

St. Louis at New York and Cincinnati at Philadelphia also were washed out.

MU Enrollment Drops For '53 Summer School

COLUMBIA, Mo., June 13 (AP)—Enrollment for the summer session at the University of Missouri totaled 2,333 on the third day of classes, approximately 300 fewer than the enrollment a year ago.

Dr. C. W. Lane, director of admissions, estimated final registration at 2,500, which would compare with 2,625 last year.

The student body includes 1,211 students enrolled in advance graduate studies, and has 1,579 men and 754 women.

Illegal Fish Assists In Captor's Arrest

TUSCUMBIA, Mo. — An illegally-taken walleye gave an assist to a conservation agent recently in overhauling an offender trying to get away with some out - of - season fishing.

Agent Warren Davis reports that he surprised the angler in Big Tavern Creek fishing for walleyes before the season opened on them May 30. The angler raced off downstream but a two - pound walleye on the stringer at his belt kept digging its fins into his legs every third jump.

With the walleye's cooperation, Davis was able to overhaul the offender and book him for violation. He also had to render first aid for several fin punctures. Davis said the pain caused by the court assessment won't be remembered nearly as long as the fish's revenge.

BJs Play Ramblers Here At 8

Chiefs Must Win Crucial Contest To Stay On Top

Mexico's rapidly-improving Ramblers, who threw the Central Missouri Ban Johnson race into a three-way tie Thursday night, invade Liberty Park tonight for a contest which will go a long way toward deciding the first half of the loop race.

The Ramblers pushed across two runs in the bottom of the ninth to hand the Boonville squad its second loss of the year, 9-8, and give Mexico, Boonville and Sedalia identical 3-2 records, best in the five-team chase.

Tonight Sedalia Manager George Thompson will start either Bill Arnold or Don Delph against the hard-hitting visitors. The main problem of the Chief moundsmen will be to shackle left fielder Bobby Hall, second baseman Freddie Hassen and the club's leading batsman, catcher Kenny Retzer.

This trio combined Thursday night to spark the winning Rambler rally, with Hall's double providing the most damage.

The Chiefs, of course, snapped their hitting slump Thursday night by lacing the Moberly Miners, 8-2, behind the no-hit hurling of Skip Schulz, who has come-on to become the locals' leading hurler.

Particularly pleasing, aside from Schulz' pitching, was the hitting of Jim Fall, Buck Bennett, Carl Miller and Bobby Brown, the pitcher who is filling in so capably at second base for the thin-ranked Chiefs. Fall was the top sticker against the Miners with three safe blows, while the remaining three chipped in two each.

Thompson Friday night said he would field the following team in tonight's 8 o'clock contest — Don Higgins, 1B; Buck Benett, SS; Jim Fall, LF; Carl Miller, CF; Bobby Brown, 2B; Sonny Thomas, 3B; Larry Mines, C; Dean Edwards, RF; and either Bill Arnold or Don Delph on the mound.

Squirrel Outlook Poor In State This Year

COLUMBIA, Mo. — Squirrel hunting was good in 1952, but the best hunters of the state believe the 1953 season will be only "fair". That was the report of Don Christisen, Conservation Commission biologist, after summarizing hunters' reports.

"They all agreed," Christisen said, "that 1952 was much better than the 1950 or 1951 seasons. There was a good reason: the crop of squirrel foods was better. The hunter - cooperators reports showed an average of 1.11 squirrels per hour of hunting — that's the same as in 1947-48. The 1951 season was only .98 squirrel per hunting hour."

All regions of the state showed improvement over the previous season. Christisen said, with the exwest.exceptions of the NW and W. These showed very slight declines over former years. The reports of food conditions, upon which this year's squirrel crop must depend, were rated "fair" by hunters, and hunting the bushytails this summer and fall may reflect these conditions.

Christisen pointed out that the average hunter bagged only about .75 squirrels per hour of hunting, less than the cooperators who represent the most ardent squirrel-hunting fans.

Large Words Add To Rookie's Worry

JACKSON, Tenn., June 13 (AP)—Sports Writer John Graham of the Jackson Sun says the incident happened recently at Municipal Park here.

A rookie from a visiting baseball club smashed a single down the third base line.

Next day he picked up the newspaper and found he hadn't been credited with a hit.

That night the rookie stalked up to the official scorer and demanded why.

"Don't worry about it," the scorer assured him. "It was just a typographical error."

"Whadda you mean, typographical error!" screamed the player. "Nobody never laid a hand on the ball and you know it."

Ben Captures Fourth US Open Crown

Icy Hogan Applies Too Much Pressure For Shaky Snead

OAKMONT, Pa., June 13 (AP)—Unshakeable Ben Hogan made it No. 4 today and hapless, frustrated Sam Snead blew another one in a pressurized head-to-head battle for the 53rd National Open golf championship.

The leathery Texas master nailed Snead's doom with a dramatic birdie-birdie finish that gave him a final 71 and a 72-hole total of 283, which shattred Oakmont's heretofore impregnable par to simthereens. His margin over runnerup Snead was six strokes.

Hogan's rounds of 67-72-73-71 put him five under par for four trips around the sprawling, 6,916-yard course which plays a rugged 37-35—72. The previous 72-hole competitive record for the heavyweight layout was 294, set by Willie McFarlane in 1934.

Snead, fretting with an unruly putter, was on the 14th green when Hogan rammed home his five-foot birdie putt on the final hole. A beaten, crestfallen man, he limped in with a 76 for a final score of 289.

It was just another in a series of bitter disappointments for the West Virginian, whose troubles began when he took an eight on the final hole to lose the championship at Philadelphia's Spring Hill in 1937.

Snead had the door thrown open to him several times during today's exhausting double round. He collared Hogan at the third hole of the morning round, passed the pace-setter by two strokes at the fifth and seemed headed for possible victory when his game suddenly went sour.

He cut Hogan's lead to a single stroke with a par 72 in the morning while Ben took a 73.

Sam Couldn't Catch-Up

But Sam was edgy and pale at the brief lunchtime intermission while Hogan appeared relaxed and confident. And Sam never could catch his old nemesis in the afternoon.

Hogan thus became the third man in the history of this classic to win the championship four times. He joined Willie Anderson, who strung out his triumphs in 1901, 1903-05 back in golf's "dark ages," and the immortal Bobby Jones, who spreadeagled the field in 1923, 1926, 1929, 1930.

The 40-year-old onetime caddy, who has made the game an exact science, led at every 18-hole pole—the first to achieve this front-running performance since Jim Barnes did it in 1921.

As the other halfway leaders—Lloyd Mangrum, George Fazio and Jay Hebert—faded in the morning, it became a bitter two-man duel in the afternoon and the excited crowd of 12,000 swarmed from one to another in an effort to catch all the drama.

Most of it was packed around the 17th and 18 holes of the final round.

One over par with two holes to play, Hogan came to the 17th and put the kindling to a wood shot that projected the ball to the green 292 feet away.

"I hit it with everything I had," he said later.

He was left with a 35-foot putt. He nursed the ball to within six inches of the cup. He sank it for his birdie three.

On the 18th, actually the 36th of the tiring day, Hogan threw all of his packaged power into a drive down the middle and then poked a five-iron shot to the green, five feet from the cup. There wasn't a doubt in thousands of minds as he measured the assignment for more than a minute, dropping a half smoked cigarette on the green and then did the same with his putt. It hit the back of the can.

Mangrum, the 1949 champion from Niles, Ill., went to pieces on the last three holes of the morning round and finished with rounds of 75-74 for a total of 292. This gave him third money.

Champ Hints This May Be His Last Open

OAKMONT, Pa., June 13 (AP)—Ben Hogan hinted after winning his fourth National Open golf championship today that this may be his last Open tournament.

Asked if he planned to play in the 1954 Open at Balustrol at Springfield, N. J., Hogan replied "I may not."

Prodded to be more specific at an informal news conference after his victory, the little four-time champion added:

"I don't want to say I'm retiring. I love golf. I want to play as long as I can.

"But I'm getting awfully tired. Some day there has to be a stopping point."

Later at informal ceremonies at which he received the $5,000 first prize, Hogan said to the assembled group:

"They keep asking me whether I'll retire. I'll tell you this. When I get so I can't prepare for a tournament then I'll retire.

"I think preparation is very important for a championship tournament."

In his speech before the large gallery, Hogan paid tribute to his wife Valerie, and denied reports that he had been given preferential treatment by the U. S. Golf association.

Almost choking up, the little champion said:

"I have wondered what Willie Anderson and Bobby Jones said when they won their fourth opens.

"I would like to say God must be with you to win the Open.

"Also I'd like to thank my wife, Valerie. We are a team. She works harder preparing me for these tournaments than I do."

Then Ben made reference to complaints of some golfers that the U. S. Golf Association had rushed them but wouldn't dare speed up Hogan.

"I want to say that these gentlemen here (the USGA) come here and work without pay. They work for the good of golf. They don't work for me."

Browns Plan Tryout Camp Here June 27

The St. Louis Browns have selected Liberty Park as the site for a tryout camp to be held Friday, June 27. The announcement of Sedalia's selection was made this week by President Bill Veeck.

The opening session will start at 9 a.m. Supervision will be under the direction of Brownie Scouts Charles Stis, Raymond Schaeffer and Fred Barth.

Camp will be open to boys between the ages of 16 and 23 years. All participants must furnish their shoes, gloves and uniforms. Players must pay their own expenses, but expenses will be refunded to any player who signs a contract with a Browns' minor league club.

The Browns boast one of professional baseball's fastest growing farm operations, topping all others in the American League in the number of clubs. Thirteen minor league baseball teams now are affiliated with the Browns' organization.

"A young player with talent will move up fast in the Browns' organization," said Veeck, in discussing tryout camps such as the one here. "We've had a great need for players from the top to the bottom of our operation and we'll give prospects a real chance to go all the way. Besides, with so many of our young players in military service, even more openings than normal exist in our organization," Veeck said.

Louise Suggs Nears Money-Winning Title

NEW YORK, June 13 (AP) — Louise Suggs, the Atlanta girl who believes a steady swing means a steady income, is close to wrapping up the money - winning title among the lady golf professionals with a record total of $15,766.25.

Figures released today by the Ladies PGA showed the smooth-swinging Southerner has a lead of almost $5,000 over her nearest rival, Patty Berg of St. Andrews, Ill., as the links ladies head for the first USGA-sponsored Women's Open at Rochester, N. Y., next week. Prize money will come to $7,500, and a victory by Miss Suggs to add to her recent win the $5,000 winner-take-all cross country tournament and five earlier triumphs would just about clinch it.

Billiken Five Opens Against Ohio State

ST. LOUIS, June 13 (AP) — The Billikens of St. Louis University will open their 1953-54 basketball season at home against Ohio State of the Big Ten Conference Dec. 8. The Bills are even up at 1-1 with the Buckeyes going into the final game of their three-year series.

St. Louis, runnerup to Oklahoma A & M in the Missouri Valley Conference last season, will open its valley schedule at Detroit University Jan. 9.

Van Loo Tames Schlitz Leaders For Third Time

Bud Van Loo, the Jefferson City Stags' fireballer, made the Sedalia Schlitz Leaders jump through the hoop for the third time this season Friday night as he hurled the visitors to a 13-2 softball victory at Center Park.

Allowing only four hits while fanning 11, Van Loo was never in trouble. His mates collected only eight hits off Leader moundsman Harry Meyer, but they bunched they well. In the seventh Jefferson City pushed across seven runs, greatly assisted by Meyer's wildness.

Gibbs, the big Stag first baseman, was the game's leading hitter banging-out two homers and a double in three official times at bat.

The Leaders now have won six and lost four, three of the defeats by Jefferson City.

The Sedalians next play Tuesday night at Houstonia in a Central Missouri Softball League contest. All players are requested to be at 420 Wilkerson at 6:30 p. m. to leave for Houstonia.

Native Dancer Takes Belmont, 3-Year-Old Title

NEW YORK, June 13 (AP) — Native Dancer proved his right to rank with the top horses this country has produced when he pulled away from Jamie K. in a thrilling stretch drive today to win the richest of all Belmont Stakes by a neck in a photo finish.

It was strictly a two-horse race for that final blistering, last quarter of a mile and Alfred Vanderbilt's grey Dancer had to pull on all of the serength of his powerful body, to overcome Jamie K., whom he had beaten in the Preakness three weeks ago at Baltimore by the identical margin.

It was the 14th victory in 15 starts for Native Dancer and the most important of his colorful career and established his claim to the three-year-old championship without a shadow of a doubt.

The Belmont, being run for the 85th time since its inception in 1867 at the old Jerome Park in the Bronx, was worth a total of $118,600 and there was a record $82,500 waiting at the finish line for the winner.

Tarkio Coach Resigns To Work With Mules

WARRENSBURG, Mo., June 13 (AP)—Harold L. Yinger, head football coach at Turkio College, has been named assistant football coach and head track coach at Central Missouri State College here, President George W. Diemer announced today.

Yinger is returning to a position he held in 1951-52, when he left here to take the job at Tarkio. He also will serve as associate professor of men's physical education.

Zernial Poles 16th Home Run To Rip Browns

ST. LOUIS, June 13 (AP) — Big Gus Zernial, the American League's home run leader, slammed No. 16 today in a power-packed attack that gave the Philadelphia Athletics an 8-3 triumph over the St. Louis Browns, who now have lost their last 12 games.

Zernial, who had hit a homer against every American League club except the Browns this season, hits his 16th with two men on base to break a 2-2 tie in the fifth inning.

Joe Astroth homered twice for the A's, his first of the season, as Philadelphia touched three Browns' pitchers for 11 hits, five good for extra bases. Both of Astroth's home runs came with the bases empty.

Southpaw Alex Kellner, who gave way to Morris Martin after a shaky start in the seventh inning, was credited with his seventh victory against five defeats, Kellner, with a 15-4 lifetime record against St. Louis, had three of the A's hits.

Eddie Robinson got the A's two other extra base hits with a pair of doubles, one driving in two runs in the sixth.

The Browns, pitching loser Dick Littlefield, Max Lanier and Bobby Cain, took a short 2-1 lead in the fourth on three consecutive singles. Roy Sievers, who got three hits, doubled home the final Browns' run in the fifth.

Sportsmen Play Brasito There This Afternoon

The Sedalia Sportsmen will journey Sunday to Brasito for a Central Missouri League game at 2, p.m. Players will meet at Liberty Park at 11 a.m. to make the trip.

Brasito has made a good record this season, having beaten SAFB and lost a close one to Jefferson City. They promise to make a good match for the Sedalia team.

Miller will be on the mound for the Sportsmen with either Bowman or Hays behind the plate.

Wedesday night the Sportsmen will be pitted against the Marshall semi-pro team at Liberty Park. Game time will be 8 p.m.

Hayden or Hayworth will start pitching duties for the Sportsmen with Hays Catching.

At this point in the season the Sportsmen have won one and lost three league games, with the Tibbets team looking for a league title, having no defeats with wins over California, Jefferson City and Versailles.

Eldon Man Lands Trout In Osage Near Bagnell

ELDON, Mo. — Local folks are wondering where it came from, but L. F. Quinn, of Eldon, caught a 2¼ - pound rainbow trout in the Osage River Memorial Day.

Conservation Agent Warren Davis reports Quinn was trolling for walleyes, using a minnow and spinner, and hooked into the whopper trout in what is called Cat Rock Eddy below Old Bagnell. Several trout have been taken this year, Davis said, but Quinn's heads the list in size. No one knows where the trout came from.

Olson, Young Tangle Friday For US Middleweight Title

NEW YORK, June 13 (AP)—Carl (Bobo) Olson of San Francisco, a transplanted Hawaiian, and Paddy Young, a home town boy from New York's Grenwich Village, meet Friday night in a 15-round match at Madison Square Garden for the American middleweight title.

The survivor qualifies to fight Britain's Randy Turpin in the fall for the undisputed world title, vacated by Sugar Ray Robinson.

Turpin, a decisive winner last Tuesday over France's Charles Humez at London for the British version of the world championship, accepted an International Boxing Club offer to meet the American finalist at Yankee Stadium in late August. The European boxing union and all U. S. commissions insist Turpin fight the Olson-Young victor before receiving universal recognition.

The odds favor Olson by 2½ to 1 because he has beaten most of the top men in his division during the last year while Young was idle. Most ratings list Turpin as No. 1 challenger for the vacant crown and Olson as No. 2.

The Garden scrap, scheduled for 8 p.m. (CST) will get the customary Friday night network treatmone on radio (ABC) and television (NBC).

No such enthusiasm as Britain generated the Turpin-Humez has been stirred by this contest. The best guess on the crowd is about 10,000 and perhaps $40,000.

Olson has disposed of a long row of top challengers within the past year. In fact, he was beaten in a very close fight for the title by Robinson, March 13, 1952 at San Francisco. It was Robinson who put the only "ko by" in Olson's record, in their first meeting at Philadelphia, Oct. 26, 1950.

In his campaign for a title shot, Olson knocked out Walter Cartier, Eugene Hairston and Lee Sala and outpointed Robert Villemain, Garth Panter and Norman Hayes, twice.

Lake Of Ozark Area Awaits Second J Bar H Ranch Rodeo

The picturesque Lake of the Ozarks country is a popular summer resort area and local residents for long have talked pridefully of the fishing, the boating, the swimming, the Bagnell Dam, and the caves. Now something new has been added to the list of local priding—the annual J Bar H Ranch Rodeo at Camdenton, Mo.

The initial Camdenton Rodeo was produced last summer and the three-day event drew 26,000 spectators. Many of the 26,000 were here viewing their first rodeo, and on the streets of Camdenton many localites were seeing, for the first time, real live cowboys in the flesh.

On arrival these big-hatted boys were watched with no little wary concern, But, when it was ascertained that they didn't carry firearms and had no intentions of shooting up the town, or barbecueing Farmer Jones' milk cow and in fact were a very nice bunch of boys, the situation changed immediately.

Today in Camdenton, local residents and resort guests are counting the days off of kitchen calendars and the kids are beginning to eye the highways, for the cowboys are again coming to town, and sister Kate is wearing a smile and a bright new ribbon in her hair.

Responsible for all of this are Harry and Jean Nelson, owners of the J Bar H Ranch and producers of the annual rodeo. Right from the start, the Nelsons wanted no pumpkin roller, but a big-time rodeo, with top stock and good cowboys. With the assistance of Ken Roberts, just such a rodeo inaugurated the new arena.

This year's event has been stretched from three to four performances, July 9, 10, 11, and 12, a wild horse race has been added and prize money has been upped to $5,500 (a $1,500 raise). John Lindsey, Charley and Bobby Davis and the Beeswax Moore family have been signed to clown. Jimmie Barr will be at the "mike" and Ken Roberts will again be the stock contractor.

Added features are the Lake of the Ozarks Square Dancers, a band of colorful Sioux Indians, the Budweiser White Mule Hitch, the Curtiss Pony Hitch and the state championship log-cutting contest.

The welcome mat is out for all and the fishing is fine.

Brownies Trade Trucks, Elliott To The Chisox

Elliott has played in 48 games so far and is batting .258.

Girl Scout News—

Day Camp Opens On Monday At Camp Sakajawea; Many Go

Girl Scout Camp opens at Camp Sakajawea Monday. The bus leaves Smith Cotton High School promptly at 8:30 a. m. and leaves the camp at 3:30 p. m. Going out girls may get on the bus at the High School, Grand and Broadway and Barrett and Broadway.

If a registration blank has not been returned to the office it may be brought to the camp properly filled out. Every girl should check her registration blank and take the things with her that it says.

Girl Scout Troop 7, Mrs. John Bowman, leader, met at the club house with two visitors, Lanna Stewart and Martha Combs. Martha, a junior camp counsellor, taught the girls how to make cup trees. June 3 the troop elected officers: Margaret Mergen, president, Iris Cannon, secretary, and Joyce Le Begue, treasurer.

Brownie Troop 61 went to Camp Sakajawea with their leaders, Mrs. Fred Scott and Mrs. S. M. Hein, and troop committee mothers, Mrs. A. Kramer and Mrs. W. Horst. Games were played and weiners roasted. The Brownies surprised their leaders with gifts.

Senior troop 21 held a slumber party at the home of Mrs. Fred Scott June 5. The girls went to the Little House for breakfast Saturday morning, chaperoned by the senior advisors, Mrs. Fred Scott and Mrs. Paul Weimholt.

Brownie Troop 2 has presented the camp committee $7.80 to be used at Camp Sakajawea. The girls earned this money and since they will be using the camp for the next eight years as Girl Scouts they want to feel that they have a share in the camp. They retained enough money to pay their next year's registration.

Girl Scout Troop 30 held it's court of awards June 7 at Camp Sakajawea. The meeting was called to order by the troop president, Mary Keith. Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Studebaker and Mr. and Mrs. P. Cecil Owen and son, Johnnie, were introduced. Each girl then introduced her family or guests. The song leader, Nan Ferguson, led in the singing of three songs. Mr. Lambirth welcomed the parents of the girls. Mrs. Cecil Owen presented the patrol leaders their badges, Barbara Daugherty of the "Skunk" patrol and Donna Anderson of the "Flying Eagles". They in turn presented the badges to their own patrols. Mrs. Harry Lambirth gave the first class badges to the girls who had earned them. The troop then gave a flag service, the ceremony closing with a Scout Leader's prayer.

Girl Scout Troop 30 presented a flag ceremony for the Sedalia Chapter of Eastern Star Tuesday night, June 9, at the Masonic Temple. There were 15 girls participating in this ceremony: Mary Keith, Sandra Johnson, Barbara Daugherty, Kay Harlan, Marion Yeaman, Nan Ferguson, Donna Anderson, Sheila Nold, Wanda McCubbin, Deanie Perkins, Kay Richardson, Kay Satterwhite, Jane Black, Barbara Freund and Gwendolyn Moon.

This troop has had a bad experience of leaders coming and going so that all the details of these badges have been worked over a period of three years. No Girl Scout could earn this many badges in one year, but they have completed them this year.

The following girls were presented with these badges:

Kay Richardson — My Community, Design, My Troop, Handywoman, Housekeeper, Drawing and Painting, Good Grooming, Games, Player, Reptile and Amphibian.

Kay Satterwhite — Good Grooming, My Community, My Troop, Reptile and Amphibian, Games, Cook, Housekeeper, Conservation, Outdoor Safety.

Thrills A-plenty for Those Going to Fair to See In '53

Thrill-hungry spectators will be well supplied with spine-thrilling and breath-taking feats at the Missouri State Fair this year when the Aut Swenson Thrillcade appears before the grandstand on Saturday night, Aug. 22, and the Joie Chitwood Daredevils compete for national honors on Sunday night, Aug. 23.

A sensational European stuntman, Cresso, and his Rocket Car, which he rides in a spectacular somersaulting leap through space, will be a deluxe special. As shown in the picture at top left, Cresso's rocket - propelled machine soars off the ramp at a high speed before beginning a dizzying loop the loop. The dramatic picture at right shows the machine clearing the ramp. Center left, Cresso and his Rocket Car are starting the somersault, and center right is how the Circus Amar in Europe ballyhooed Swedish-born Cresso during his tour of the continent. That's Cresso, left below, just before the Rocket Car is pulled to its starting place atop the towering ramp, and at right below, the daredevil is shown at the precarious height of his stunt.

Cracking automobiles in head-on collisions, men dropping from speeding automobiles, motorcycles hurtling through solid walls of fire, stock automobiles being deliberately cracked and rolled end over end are all on the bill of fare for the thrill contest which will have, as contestants, men who have defyed death to live in the movies and with top thrill stunt shows of the nation.

Added to the two big nights of Auto Thrill Shows will be the Motorcycle races scheduled for the afternoon of the first day, Saturday, August 22, with big car races on Sunday, August 23 and Saturday, August 29, and Stock Car Races on the last day of the Fair, August 30.

For those who enjoy their speed less thrilling, there are five big days of Grand Circuit Harness Racing, when the nation's best pacers and trotters race for a $136,000.00 purse and many coveted trophies.

Harness Racing days are Monday through Friday, August 24-28.

While thrill and speed are headliners specials on this year's menu of entertainment at the Fair in Sedalia, many other outstanding features have been added to round out one of the most exciting and well-balanced programs of entertainment ever offered fairgoers in the long history of the "Show Me" State Fair.

Golden Gate Quartet Will Sing at Marshall

The Golden Gate Quartet, one of the well known Negro spiritual singing groups of the United States, will appear at the Marshall High School Tuesday, June 16.

The group, which originated at Hampton Roads, Va., is credited with popularizing spirituals and folk music in general and has played before large audiences all over the country.

15 Carriers Aid Korea

FAR EAST NAVAL HEADQUARTERS, Yokousuka (AP)—Fifteen U. S. aircraft carriers now are veterans of the Korean war. Nine of them were in mothballs at the start of conflict in June, 1950.

Since the fall of 1950 the Navy said it has kept at least three attack carriers and one or more escort carriers in Far Eastern quarters. The Navy said it presntly has the flattops Valley Forge, Oriskany and Philippine Sea on duty off the Korean east coast while escort and light carriers with marine pilots operate off the west coast.

Mary Schwenk, 10, Is Avid Collector of Butterflies

By Mrs. Melvin White
(Member of The Democrat News Staff)

There are hundreds of people, young and old, scattered about Sedalia, who have a hobby or two but I believe blond headed Mary Louise Schwenk has the majority of them beat. Although Mary Louise is only ten years old she has collections of dolls, butterflies, stamps, cups and saucers as well as several other smaller collections. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Schwenk, 1404 South Carr, and will be in the sixth grade at Horace Mann next year.

Mary Louise could talk for hours on the subject of butterflies. She not only collects them, but she reads all the latest books and articles that she can obtain on them and other insects. She is deeply interested in nature and is encouraged by her mother, who takes an active interest in her daughter's hobbies and assists whenever possible.

Together they read the books on butterflies then try to find new kinds for the collection. At present Mary Louise is on the lookout for a zebra swallowtail. The neighbors are never surprised when they see Mary Louise sailing over to their yards with a butterfly net in her hand and they are helpful by telling her when they see an unusual looking butterfly in their yard. Sometimes she uses the net, but she likes to catch them with her hands.

Whenever she finds a crippled butterfly she brings him into the house, feeds and keeps him inside until he is able to fly again. When she first brings them in she takes a toothpick to uncurl the tongue and then gives them their first taste of sugar water . . . . after that first taste they never again have to be begged to eat.

They flutter about the house, sometimes for months at a time, and become so tame that they land on the shoulders of Mary Louise and her parents. Mary Louise often takes them outside and places them on flowers for the day; then at night she brings them back into the house. When the butterfly has completely recovered he is turned loose and sometimes he stays in the back yard for a day or two and when Mary Louise is playing in the back yard he will come and perch on her shoulder. So that proves that even butterflies become pets.

When she first said she doctored the crippled butterflies I thought she probably nursed them back to health, then got out her finger nail polish remover and killed them. That seemed rather cruel, but Mary Louise later told me that she saves only the perfect ones. To kill them she puts a drop of finger nail polish remover on their head, then spreads the wings out on paper while they are still warm and presses them. She and her mother always carry the polish remover and paper with them where ever they go because if the wings are not spread out while warm they will never press properly. Several frames of butterflies are hung in the house, but there are over a hundred butterflies and other insects in the attic.

From writing an article about her hobbies in the magazine "Wee Wisdom" Mary Louise received many letters from children all over the United States and is eagerly looking forward to exchanging butterflies with a girl from California.

Mary Louise takes such a deep interest in her hobbies that her friends are always on the lookout for something which would add to her collections.

Martin Harrelson, 1211 South Sneed, who is also interested in hobbies, sent for five large butterflies from India and Japan and gave them to Mary Louise.

When asked to name the butterflies that were hung about the house, it was no trick at all for her to do. She not only named them, but also told a little bit about them too.

Along with her collection of butterflies is her fast growing stamp collection. This collection was begun during the war years. Mary Louise doesn't need a book to learn her history . . . . . she can learn her's from her stamp collection. She has books on stamps and these give the complete history of each stamp and make it much more interesting. It was pointed out by Mary Louise that a straight edge stamp was more valuable than a regular edged stamp and she has a few of these "freaks". Among her oldest stamps is one dated 1799. Along with her stamps she saves Christmas and Easter seals.

The stamp collection is one of her favorite winter pastimes and when she isn't chasing butterflies in the summer, she works on it.

With all these hobbies Mary Louise never has a dull minute. One might think that with so many hobbies they would be incomplete and not well kept, but you need only talk to Mary Louise for a very few minutes to realize just how sincere and interested she is in each hobby. In the winter she has to divide her time between her hobbies and her school studies.

The newest hobby is the collection of cups and saucers which was started a year ago last Christmas. She received some money as a gift and decided to begin a cup and saucer collection. Her collection has grown through gifts from friends and she has a cup and saucer from over half of the states. She has a miniature cup which is 35 years old, and another with a woman's head formed in the bottom.

Mary Louise's oldest collection, and one that all girls love, is the one of dolls. Relatives started this for her when she was a tiny baby and it now includes a case of story book dolls and another of dolls from other nations. She has dolls from Germany, China, Italy, Japan, Panama, Korea, Scotland and Mexico.

Two dolls in her collection are very valuable and are highly treasured. These were hand made in Old Mexico 78 years ago and given to her by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kennedy.

Among the most recently acquired additions is the Japanese doll sent to her from her cousin, Bill Schwenk, who is in service. The doll from Schotland looks very gay in her bright plaid, pleated skirt and white blouse and the most industrious among the dolls is the six inch high German girl who is knitting.

Mary Louise, who thinks she would like to be a nurse when she grows up, loves all her hobbies and hated to say which was her favorite, but I think it would be a close race between the stamp and butterfly collections.

Hal Boyle's Column---

Life Often Looks Dull, But Think of How It Could Be

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Do you ever know days when your backbone feels like a piece of wet spaghetti?

Days when, if you order a hot dog for lunch, the joint is fresh out of mustard? Days when your ear is deaf to the call of duty? Days when your job seems as dull as an old B-grade movie, run backwards on a grainy television screen?

Everyone knows such days. Yes, even in the romantic, glamorous, exciting newspaper field, in which you "meet such interesting people." There are days when a reporter finds the doorknobs he puts his hand to have more warmth than the people he meets after he opens the doors.

(Editor's note: Stop it, Boyle. Our society editor has broken down crying, and one of our copy boy has red eyes and is murmurning, "Life, life. What is life?")

Well, what can a guy or girl do on those days when all the bugles have a rusty sound, all the jokes are stale, and what you have to do seems as tasteless as the things a husband finds in the refrigerator after his wife has gone away on vacation?

One thing you can do is think how you might feel if you had the other fellow's job in his dull or hopeless moments. For example, how would you like to be:

A tired housewife, who has been wiping little runny noses all day and is greeted at dusk by her prince charming: "What! not macaroni and cheese for dinner again?"

Or a professional dogcatcher, whose small boy's pet pooch runs away and the kid looks at his dad accusingly, as if the old man had turned in the dog at the pound just to build up his record for the month?

Or a bum who picks a quarter from the pavement and finds it is counterfeit?

Or a mail carrier, who has packed a million letters for other people to read, and never in his life got the one letter he wanted himself?

Or a lonely soldier in an outpost on a nameless hill, waiting at twilight for the night to fall and the unseen enemy to come against him?

Or a bus driver, with a fat lady on the back treadle screaming, "let me off this bus, or I'll write the mayor," and a passenger at his right demanding, "Why can't you change a $5 bill?"

Or a straw boss, told to cut down his working force, who looks at the oldtimers around him and asks his hear, "How can I let any of them go?"

Or an old gray spoiled dog the day the family gets a bright new pink baby?

Or a gay carefree mouse, when a tomcat moves into the house—a tomcat anxious to prove to the management he is worth his keep?

Yes, everybody has his bad or sad or useless days. But any day you feel bad, you are lucky in the fact that somebody, somewhere, has a more terrible reason for feeling worse—and does feel worse.

How would you like to be a flagpole sitter in a lightning storm?

(Editor's note: Thanks, Boyle, thanks. Our society editor has dried her tears. The copy boy is feeling better, too. He fell sound asleep—reading your article.)

Dr. Kenneth R. Barnum, of Kansas City, who practiced medicine in Sedalia for 25 years, was the principal speaker at the 76th annual alumni dinner of the Wellsboro-Charleston, Pa., joint high school.

The dinner, which was attended by some 250 alumni, was held in the Penn Wells Hotel in Wellsboro. Dr. Barnum was a graduate of the school in 1953.

When notified that he had been chosen as speaker, Dr. Barnum got in touch with a 1903 classmate in Oklahoma, and the two drove back to Wellsboro together.

In the speech Dr. Barnum gave the following prescription to the graduates of 1953 in whose honor the dinner was held:

To John Q. Public, 1953 Hope Street:

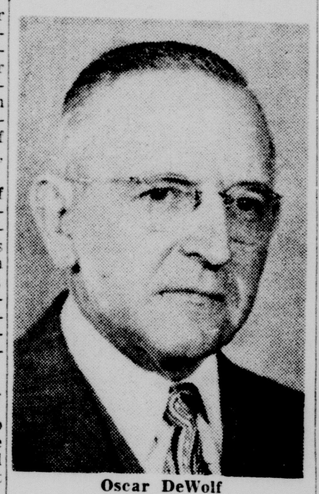

Rx Faith,
Temperance
Tolerance
Of each, quantity sufficient
Add Economy
Take daily, followed by Harmony.

Dr. Barnum told the graduates that this prescription could be filled at the Security Store at the Corner of Peace and Prosperity. Then he told them to remember that "youth without faith guarantees age without hope."

Oscar DeWolf Honored for 20 Years With Agriculture Dept.

Oscar DeWolf

Oscar DeWolf, county supervisor of the United States Farmers Administration, was presented a citation Thursday at a meeting for county personnel, held at the Little Theatre in Sedalia, by Stephen C. Hughes, State Director for Missouri, on behalf of the secretary of Agriculture of the United States, Ezra Benson.

The citation is in recognition of the completion of 20 years of service in the Department of Agriculture and 17 of the 20 years has been spent in Pettis County with the Farmers Home Administration, an agency of the United States Department of Agriculture to supervise the rural credit program below commercial credit level to eligible farmers.

In making the presentation, Mr. Hughes stated he had been privileged to present this citation to only three other people in the State of Missouri and he went on to tell of an incident that happened at the time Mr. DeWolf was employed. It was in depression times and employment was not too easy to get. Mr. DeWolf's term of office had just ended in the work in which he was engaged and he was looking for work. Mr. Hughes, knowing of his qualifications, needed such a man and wrote him a letter to which Mr. DeWolf replied he didn't believe he was interested. He wanted something that was permanent. Mr. Hughes likes to tell the story and felt it particulary good when he presented the 20 year citation, 20 years seems like a fairly steady job, he thinks.

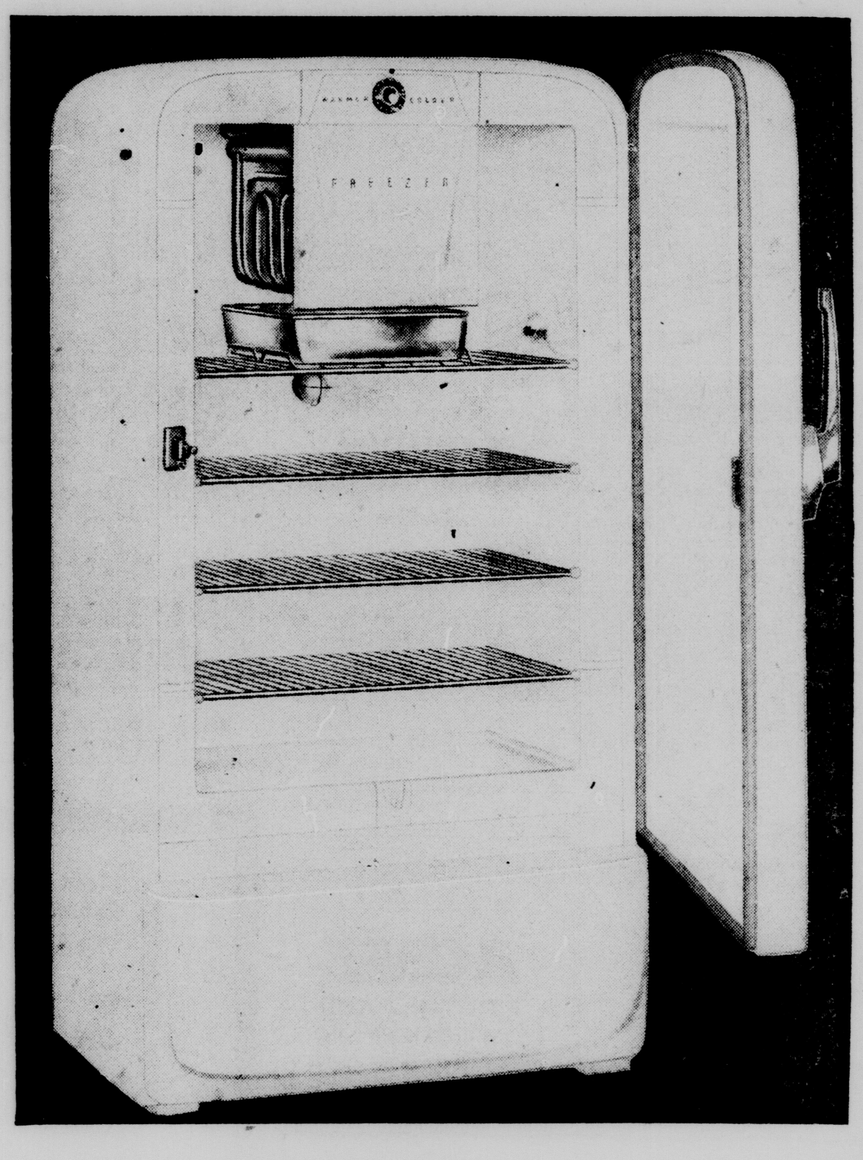

Mr. DeWolf started as appraiser for the Federal Land Bank in St. Louis, was county agent in Southeast Missouri and then came to Sedalia, where he has since served Pettis County.

During his residence in Sedalia he has been active in civic affairs, has served as president of the Rotary Club, and now is serving as a member of the executive board of the Lake of the Ozarks Council of the Boy Scouts of America. He is also an outsanding rose grower and active in the Sedalia Rose Society.

Mr. and Mrs. DeWolf live at 503 South Park.

Today Is Flag Day

Old Glory Has Had Glorious History, But Still Doesn't Receive Tribute It Should From the American People

By Hazel Lang
(Member of The Democrat News Staff)

The things that are dearest our hearts are so often taken so lightly that we think little about them until the moment comes when they are about to be snatched from us, or we are in a place when we need them very badly, then we know.

There is God. We know He is there, but we go through the forms of worship almost mechanically. We are sincere in our religion but we fail in our living. We try to keep Him close but we wander in our thoughts and our dreams of our every day life. And then comes a time when the hour is dark, the need is great and we reach out in desperation. He is there to listen to our prayers that really come from the heart and to answer.

There are our families. Sometimes we get along very well, we think, without the love of our families. Sometimes we grow impatient, unkind, independent. We want to live our own lives — and then suddenly something happens. We call out in the darkness for those nearest us and they are there to give us their all in the unhappy hours we thought we would never have.

And there is our flag. Sure, we put our hands over our hearts and go through the mumbled pledge of allegiance again and again — but it is those who have seen it on the battlefield in the hour when death and destruction hover close who feel the glory of the flag of the United States of America.

It was such a glimpse of that emblem of freedom that inspired our national anthem. Thousands of young men, and many women, too, have felt the same way as they have seen the Stars and Stripes flying before them with the thunder of guns and bombs all around in their blinding brilliance.

The fluttering of the bright banner as it is planted on captured soil, the knowing that it means your people are close at hand when you are prisoner and have just about given up hope, the feeling that it is for this land you are fighting, the land over which this flag flies, for its freedom and for the protection of its people.

Such a flag flies in front of the public library. It is not just an ordinary American flag, but a flag that traveled from overseas on the casket of a Sedalia boy who died in World War II trying to keep it flying.

A boy, who like thousands of other American boys, had dreams of happiness in a free world. He had ambitions of finishing college, of a golden future, a home and family, a wife to come back to, but had he and other boys not have laid down their lives the stars and stripes would not today be flying.

He was a ranking student in school, and that carried over into his military training and then came the call. He gave his all.

Look up at that flag as you pass the library and pledge allegiance in your own way. Remember why it flies there and remember, too, the blood, as red as the seven red stripes, that has been shed by young Americans in all of the wars to preserve it.

This flag of the United States of America was originated through an act of Congress in Philadelphia on June 14, 1777, but it is not the first flag under which Americans fought.

There were flags with rattlesnakes, the idea catching the public mind after Benjamin Franklin in his paper, the Pennsylvania Gazette, suggested sending a cargo of rattlesnakes to the London parks in retaliation for British injustice.

Still another flag bore the legend: "Don't Tread on Me", which wasn't a bad slogan for an American flag. The flag of Americans should fly high and proudly, it should be looked upon with reverence, with loyalty and pride in our hearts. It should never hang from a pole in shreds or be dragged in the dirt.

There are stories of how the flag of the United States was designed. The best known story is that Washington went to Betsy Ross, a seamstress, and asked her to make a flag. Another story is that the coat of arms of the Washington family of Sulgrave Manor, England, was used as a design, but this tale was not heard until 1850 when Martin Puppin, English writer, suggested it.

Frances Hopkinson, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, claimed he designed the Stars and Stripes.

The flag of 1777 was used until 1795, but with the admission of two more states to the Union, Congress passed and President Washington signed an act on May 1, 1795 the flag should have 15 stripes instead of the original 13, and they were to alternate red and white. Fifteen stars were to be on the blue field.

When new states were added, Congress ordered that on July 4, 1818 the flag would have 13 stripes, symbolic of the 13 original states, and whenever a new state was admitted a new star should be added. There are seven red and six white horizontal stripes and a union which consists of a blue field with white, five pointed stars in the upper corner next to the staff and extending from the lower edge of the fourth red stripe from the top.

This is the flag that is symbolic of the land of the free, the emblem of the greatest country in the world, the flag you may pass with little thought, you may fail to hang out for today, Flag Day, or any other occasion, you pledge allegiance to without feeling, you watch it pass in a parade without putting your hand to your heart—but, what if somebody tried to take that flag away from yol, soldiers from another country would tear it fram a pole — what would you do? You'd fight for it without hesitation. The love for that flag is there but it takes something deep to stir that love to action.

But look at it as you pass where it is flying — there is nothing more beautiful than the flag of the United States against the blue of the heavens. That flag belongs to you.

OLD GLORY

Red, white and blue made in a design
Seven red stripes and six white
And every American proudly says "Mine"
When Old Glory comes in sight;
Stripes for the 13 colonies when
Our nation was started new,
Thirteen five pointed stars there were then
Upon a field of blue,
Then as each state was admitted
They added another white star
And each one had to be fitted
On the blue just as they are,
For each was a state in our nation
And each on the flag had a place
Making a glorious creation,
A flag that is loved by each race
For color, nor creed matter little
Nor from where our ancestors came,
East, West, North, South or the middle,
Americans all are the same,
One country to which we're devoted
One flag we love one and all,
From the obscure to the noted
We answer our country's call.
Old Glory in all of your splendor
Fly over the land of the free
And always it's good to remember
It belongs to you and to me,
Much blood has been shed to preserve it
Broken dreams, heartaches and tears,
Be certain you always deserve it
As you go on down through the years,
Give it your love and devotion,
There's nothing that's quite so grand
May it wave from ocean to ocean
Forever over our land.

The 24th State of the Union---

Missouri Is End Star, 3rd Row As Old Glory Waves Flag Day

Today is Flag Day, the anniversary of the establishment of the stars and stripes as the U. S. flag. As you look at the waving flags, you can identify Missouri's place on the banner. Missouri, as the 24th state to enter the union, is the 24th star—the righthand star in the third row from the top.

Customs and the consensus of experts on U. S. flag symbolism assign a particular star in the flag to each state. The order is that in which the states were admitted to the union. The first 13 states were admitted upon their ratification of the constitution, the ohers by federal action. Dates of admission for the 48 states are:

1. Delaware, Dec. 7, 1787.

Little League Major Leaguers

Sedalia's Little League is organized just like the big leagues. The baseball players are "bought" and "sold" by the teams — and the big league teams have their minor league clubs where the younger boys get training and experience that lets them try to pry their way into the majors.

The major leagues — four teams in the American League and four in the National League — have regulation uniforms. They play on a miniature, but regulation diamond. It is at their own new stadium in the Jennie Jaynes Lewis memorial recreation area just west of Liberty Park.

Pictured below are the major league teams as of the beginning of the season and the managers and coaches are included in the photos with the boys.

STOLES are becoming more and more important. All fabrics, and all colors are popular. So many sun dresses are being shown without jackets so make that your que to wear a stole, with them. Many of the dresses of course, have matching stoles. White loosely woven ones are pretty and have a soft feminine look. Many of you put off wearing a new style item when actually you have occasion to wear it. Stoles are smart and for cool evenings they are practical. Summer is a grand time to educate yourself to stoles, because Fall will soon be here and the suits and many of the coats will have them—yes, a lot of skirts will have matching stoles, too.

TO THE CHURCH

Ushers arrive at the church about an hour before the ceremony. Their boutonnieres should be pinned on, and they should be carefully instructed concerning friends and relatives who are to sit with the family. Ushers most likely to recognize friends and members of each family are detailed to the center aisles.

The bride's mother may ride to the church with the bridesmaids, or be escorted by someone in the wedding party. The bridesmaids meet at the bride's home and go together to the church. The bridegroom and best man arrive together about fifteen minutes before the ceremony. The best man has the ring, minister's fee and license. They wait in the vestry. Last to arrive are the bride and her father. The bride wears the traditional "something old, new, borrowed, blue." Her engagement ring is on her right hand, leaving the left hand free for the wedding band.

Parents of the groom are escorted to a front pew, right of the center aisle. The bride's mother is seated by an usher at the left of the center aisle, in front. When she is seated in her place the wedding march begins and no one else is seated.

They're Never Too Young For Glamor

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Beauty Editor

Girls will be girls—so even the tiniest tot enjoys rummaging in Mom's handbag or vanity table for cosmetics. A raid on the face powder will leave its mark on plump cheeks, and lipstick smeared on small mouths will startle the household.

These are not traits peculiar to certain of the lollipop set. Queen Elizabeth II, they say, upset the palace in her toddling days by appearing with rouged mouth on occasions. Many an underprivileged youngster has done the same thing.

A smart mother will make use of the yen for big-girl charm by taking the opportunity to instill some good-grooming habits in daughter. She stresses the importance of brushing for lustrous hair, and teaches her child a 20-strokes-a-day routine. She teaches her how to wash her hands, how a small brush will remove dirt from under the nails, how to push back the cuticle gently with a towel occasionally. She impresses her with the importance of the daily bath and makes it less of a chore and more fun with the addition of scented soap, bubble bath or a drop or two of bath oil. And she teaches her that cleanliness is the basis of beauty, that such embellishments as powder, rouge, lipstick and nailpolish are not applied merely to cover up flaws.

Mom may encourage her little girls to eat foods "that are good for beauty." Such staples as orange juice, spinach, milk, cereal, carrots and eggs are all the more palatable when they help make you beautiful, as any little girl knows.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Th Bureau of Naval Personnel has announced that advancements in ratings for Donald L. Elliott, son of Mrs. Lela Elliott, 900 West 11th, Sedalia, serving aboard the destroyer tender USS Arcadia, Atlantic Fleet, and Charles Rouchka, 1600 East Broadway, Sedalia, to boilerman first class, USN, serving aboard the heavy cruiser USS Newport News, Atlantic Fleet.

The advancements came as a result of a world-wide competitive written test which consisted of questions testing military and professional skills.

To be eligible for the written quiz, Navy personnel had to exhibit proficiency in the on-the-job phases of their ratings.

Formosa Wants Okinawa

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP)—Chiang Kai-shek's Chinese Nationalists apparently hope that Okinawa and and the rest of the Ryukyus, strategic Pacific islands between Formosa and Japan, one day will come back to Chinese rule.

Evidence of this was provided by a letter sent to Foreign Minister George Yeh by the control Yuan, Free China's highest watchdog body. The letter, inspired by press reports that Japan intended to discuss with the United States the "problem of the Ryukyus," asked Yeh to pay close attention to the situation.

The Nationalists all along have claimed the Ryukyus were part of the Chinese empire before they were taken by Japan.

Dorothy Truitt Clifford Wins Art Award In California Show

"HARBOR TWILIGHT", painting of Mrs. William Clofford, which won the Bonita Award of $50 in the Art Show of winning pictures in Art Shows during the year of 1952.

Out in San Diego, Calif., Dorothy Truitt Clifford, former Sedalian, is receiving honors and cash for her art work. She was awarded the Bonita Prize in the year's Art Guild annual exhibition held recently in San Diego, an award that means $50 in cash.

The picture on which Dorothy won this coveted award is "Harbor Twilight" and is the view from the window at her home. It was last summer when another Sedalian, Mrs. Frieda Nelson, was visiting in San Diego that Dorothy asked her guest to pick out something she would like to have in a picture and she would paint it and send it to her. Frieda came back with: "The view from your front window." And so, some of these days the prize winning picture will belong to Frieda, after Dorothy gets through showing it.

It was about a year and a half ago that Dorothy's teacher, Lillian S. Aguirre, thought her work good enough to try for membership in the Art Guild, which is the art group of the Fine Arts Society and whose exhibits are held in the Fine Arts building in Balboa Park. So Dorothy submitted five paintings to the jury and applied for membership. She was accepted by the jury and in time, too, to hang her pictures in the annual All Media Show in March.

Most of the shows in San Diego are juried, says Dorothy, because of the great number of people in California who paint, so she felt it was a great honor even to get "hung".

Then came the October show and Dorothy again was "Hung", and this time she received one of the Guild awards, which was $25.

"I still can't believe it," says Dorothy, but that award entitled her to hang with the year's prize winners in non - juried, all membership show in December where she won the Bonita Award.

It isn't enough just to paint a pretty picture for the art shows, they must have design, form, line, technique, paint quality and numerous other qualifications.

Dorothy does mostly knife work now, doing the underpainting with a thin wash of paint and turpentine establishing the design, or composition, color and general form and from then on she uses knives.

"It is fun to use the knives" says Dorothy, "And then I don't have brushes to clean."

A couple of years ago Dorothy's husband, William, gave her a set of knives but somehow she forgot them and left them at school over the Thanksgiving holidays. When she went back they weren't there so — with her prize money from the show last Fall and a gift from William, she bought a really fine set of knives, nine in the set of various sizes, shapes and flexibility. The knives are similar in shape to a garden trowel, but of course, small, only one or two inches long.

At present Dorothy is taking two classes. She has been studying design under Prof. John Dirks. Mr. Dirks, a professor at State College, when taking the class through the exhibit lecturing on the work said of Dorothy's "Harbor Twilight" that it had dynamic line and balance as opposed to quiet color.

THE PICTURE OF CALLA LILIES, which was the winner of the Guild Award of $25 in the March Show of 1952 which entitled Mrs. Clifford to hang pictures in the show of award winners during the entire year of 1952.

One thing that Dorothy has enjoyed doing during the winter was teaching a class of Junior Art Leaguers which was volunteer work and sponsored by the Art Guild. These classes were held every Saturday morning and she was amazed at the work those youngsters between the ages of eight and 13 turned out.

"What wouldn't I have given for such an opportunity when I was that age" said Dorothy.

Dorothy can't remember when she didn't paint or do art work of some kind and it was in the seventh grade that the class had to write essays on what they wanted to be when they grew up. Dorothy wanted to be an artist and in the family Bible, after her mother's death, she found a picture of the three Wise Men that she painted about that time and her mother had saved it.

One time when a line drawing ran in the Democrat of some children sitting on some steps blowing soap bubbles, Dorothy, without her mother's knowledge, colored the picture and sent it in — but not in her own name, she used her younger brother's name. In fact she colored the picture while her younger brother and sister took care of her baby niece, a job that she was supposed to do.

Well, little brother won first prize, and Dorothy got scolded by mother, but the three youngsters split the money — $5 — and that was a lot of money, three ways.

Dorothy's health was bad and she had to quit school. There were no art teachers in Sedalia so her art work was confined to making crepe paper flowers, wax beads, place cards and such things. Then came the day that changed her entire life. She went down to the Lass Studio to have her picture taken for Christmas and saw a sign there: "Lessons in Photo Tinting."

Above all things that was what she wanted and her parents gave her lessons in photo tinting as a Christmas present. Mr. Lass became very much interested in the little girl and after the course in tinting she took up other phases of photography which Mr. Lass taught her and took her into the studio. She went on from there, winning fourth place in a national amateur contest, as well as numerous prizes at the State Fair and other places.

She went into partnership with Mr. Lass learning the business from taking pictures to the delivery but her specialty remained tinting.

Off and on, as she was permitted, she studied drawing and painting and in 1932 went to Chicago for a summer course at the Chicago Institute. There it was, that she painted her mother's favorite picture. A scene from the dock, full of color and life.

During the depression she didn't do much painting because those were lean years at the studio.

A little Art Club was formed in Sedalia and a small group of artists painted together and even had an exhibit tt Bothwell Hotel. There was a piece in the paper inviting anyone interested in art to join the club and that was how Dorothy met William. William was interested in architectural work then but he was working and going to school so didn't take much part in the club. He found time to have a big interest in Dorothy, however, and the romance that started then ended in marriage a few years later.

Dorothy studied drawing and painting under Mr. Lass and her reputation as an artist increased. She was well known in Sedalia and surrounding communities for her art work as well as photography in fact she made talks. One talk was entitled "Making Faces" which dealt with art and she had an engagement to fill at one of the local clubs, but somehow she got mixed up and learned that she was just a week late for the engagement. She could just imagine the faces that were made in disgust about her when she didn't show up for the program.

Then Dorothy was given the job as superintendent of the Fine Arts Department at the Missouri State Fair, which she kept until the Fair was stopped by the war.

Dorothy and William left Sedalia and went east then to Corpus Christi, Texas. It was in Corpus Christi that she began doing water colors again and signed up with Frederick Taubes an internationally known artist who was to be there to conduct a three weeks course. Then she went to San Diego where she has really done things with her art work. She has a group of friends she likes to go painting with and one day she and another woman were painting when a group of small boys came by.

One little boy stopped and watched the other woman paint a rather large picture and finally he asked if she sold her paintings. To make conversation she said she did.

"How much do you get for one?" he asked.

"How much do you think it is worth?" she queried.

"Oh, I think it should be worth $2."

She agreed and the little fellow sauntered over to Dorothy who was making a small picture, in fact sketching, so she make a larger picture from the sketch.

He asked her the same questions and then asked how much she sold hers for.

Dorothy, having heard the other conversation said: "Oh, I think it should be worth about $2, don't you?"

The child was surprised: "Two dollars for that little thing" he exclaimed and walked off in disgust.

Another time a group of artists were painting when a woman came up and stood watching them. One of the girls thought she should say something so she said, "We're artists."

The woman, evidently not so impressed with the pictures, looked the group up and down and said, "If you're artists, then I'm the Queen of England." The group, who knew they were artists felt flattered -- here they had been talking to royalty.

Dorothy has a grand time with her art work and William goes right along with her, he has been taking a class in silk screen printing and they work together. She makes the original designs and pictures and he takes over from there. They have one of the bed rooms fixed up as a studio work shop. And so, Dorothy has had her little girl dreams come true — she has become an artist and keeps climbing higher and higher winning honors in all she does and has a husband who shares her enthusiasm.

State's Towns Find Parking A Big Puzzle

Missouri cities are facing the same traffic and parking problems with which Sedalians are struggling — and none has yet come up with a cure-all plan.

But, a survey of Missouri towns shows, they are using city-owned free parking lots as a main item to cope with the increasing trend of motorized shopping.

The Mexico Ledger conducted the survey and some of its findings follow:

Columbia has two city-owned lots, one for 40 cars and one for 20. In addition the city has three private parking lots.

The lone city-owned parking lot in Independence is the only one surveyed which uses parking meters. The 58-car lot was financed with meter revenues. Independence also has nine private lots owned by various businesses for their employees and patrons. The smallest of these holds 12 autos.

There are two lots in Marshall, both paid for by the city. One wil hold 40 cars, the other 30.

A paved river-front lot (capacity 150) is utilized by the City of Hannibal, in addition to a smaller (65 car) lot back of the Mark Twain Hotel. The latter is leased by the city at $1.00 a year and given a blacktop surfacing and otherwise improved at city expense. Supermarkers and other business firms also have at least six lots.

Kirksville's 30-car city-owned lot was paid for from the general revenue fund.

Parking meters on the streets provide funds for the two city-owned lots in Carthage. They accommodate 86 and 50 cars respectively.

Leading among cities surveyed as far as parking lots is concerned, Jefferson City has 43 lots inside the city limits. However, none of them is city owned, since the majority belongs to the state or federal government. It does have one lot where space can be rented. The largest lot holds 46 cars, the smallest, two.

Boonville, Chillicothe, Moberly, and Poplar Bluff all reported no parking lots, although Chillicothe does have two and "both are small, at the edge of the business district, and are used very little."

Moberly added "most of our streets are wider than Mexico's approaches to the square, and business is so distributed that it is not too difficult, usually, to find unmetered parking space within two or three blocks of any location."

Only three cities included in the survey have widened their streets to make it possible to have diagonal parking (which provides more parking space).

In addition to Marshall and Chillicothe, which have widened their streets, Independence reports that "streets at various locations have been widened at every opportunity to take diagonal parking; however diagonal parking is now being abandoned as a method, and no longer is adapted to newly widened streets."

"We have not widened streets to take diagonal parking," reports Cape Girareau. "The traffic advisory commitee, which recommends in traffic matters to the city council, has insisted on elimination of all angle parking; not take on any new.

Angle parking (is) a dangerous practice frowned upon. More collisions occurred as a result of vehicles backing out of (parking) places . . . than from any other one source. This makes fewer parking places . . . but the safety factor more than compensates for it."

Half of the cities surveyed had developed programs for parking development.

In Hannibal, city authorities are considering expanding river front parking space and making the present facilities "more useable."

Carthage is "working to get more parking lots as more money becomes available."

Under Independence zoning regulations new developments where there are numerous employees are required to provide off-street parking space approximately equal to the area of the building.

Marshall uses the space in front of its band shell for parking and the lot adjoining its mill is used for big trucks.

In Cape Girareau a traffic advisory committee is now formulating a zoning amendment that would require businesses to provide off-street parking for their employees. A long range program for street widening is also under consideration.

Columbia, Poplar Bluff and Jefferson City are now working on long range programs.

Kirksville, Chillicothe, Boonville, and Moberly have no specified programs for parking development.

Red Cross Notes—

101 Volunteers Gave 524 Hours For Recent Bloodmobile Visit

Any breakdown of statistics is always interesting, especially to those most intimately concerned. A successful Blood Bank means many hours of work, both before and during the proceedings, and the following tabulation gives an authentic picture of just what the volunteers of the Pettis Chapter puts into one of these visits of the Bloodmobile:

For each service groups the following number of volunteers gave the number of hours listed: Canteen, 27, 155½ hours; motor, 8, 29 hors; nures's aides, 10, 68 hours; gray ladies, 17, 81 hours; graduate nurses, 10 58 hours; nurses, 10, 37 hours.

Nineteen other volunteers (not certificated) served 85½ hours. All told, 101 volunteers gave 524 hours. Seven extension clubs made 209 cookies which were a part of the always welcome refreshments served the donors.

Plans Swim Training

Don Gray, Red Cross water safety instructor at the Liberty Park swimming pool, has been in Jefferson City for the past week taking further instruction in the water program. The Red Cross swimming instructions begins Tuesday, June 23. All cards must be turned in to the chapter office without delay. The enrollment is almost complete with full class periods for some of the age groups: 9-10 a. m. 12 years and over: 10-11 a. m. 8 and 9 years old; 11-12 a. m. 10 and 11 years old.

Classes will be held Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday mornings. Admittance to the pool during these hours is free, as well as the swimming instruction.

Vast Disaster Aid

The fourteen major disaster operations of the American Red Cross in the past three months makes this the worst disaster year since 1927. Emergency relief and rehabilitation so far provided has virtually wiped out the entire Red Cross disaster budget for the entire year.

Alabama - Georgia tornadoes April 8, killed 8, injured 396; Red Cross costs $298,860.

Central Georgia tornado, April 30, killed 8, injured 378; families affected 569; Red Cross costs $103,-315.

Midwestern tornadoes May 9-10, killed 17, injured 79; families affected 642; Red Cross costs $146,-315.

Waco-San Angelo, Tex., tornados May 11, killed 124, injured 1,256; families affected 2,635; estimated Red Cross costs $675,000.

Louisana floods and storms May 21, families affected 1000; estimated Red Cross costs $300,000.

St. Clair, Mich., tornado May 21, killed 1, injured 68; families affected 600; probable Red Cross costs $100,000.

Butler County Kan., flood May 27, killed 2, injured 26; families affected 310; Red Cross costs $80,-000.

Newton-Orange Counties, Tex., floods, May 19, families affected 350; probable Red Cross costs, $25,000.

Montana floods June 6, families affected 1,550; Red Cross costs $58,500.

Michigan tornadoes June 8, killed 116, injured 791; families affected 727.

Ohio tornadoes June 8, killed 19, injured 351; families affected 478.

Iowa floods June 9, killed 10, injured 25; families affected 1,309.

Massachusetts - New Hampshire tornadoes June 9, killed 93, injured 1,035; families affected 2,657.

Seek More Funds Here

Property damage and personal injuries in these last four disasters are still being assessed, and it is too early to estimate what Red Cross cost of relief and rehabilitation will be. Additional funds will be required to meet the needs created these last few days. Texas and Michigan chapter have already been asked to conduct special appeals for disaster funds. Now with these additional castastrophes, we feel the need to go beyond the affected areas. If there are persons in Pettis County who desire to help in aiding the stricken in the many disasters, donations may be made to the Pettis Chapter, 112 West 4th Street.

Churches Start Tithing Plan

NEW YORK (AP)—The big church denominations are taking an economic lesson from the little ones.

It involves the art of passing the collection plate—at which some of the smallest denominations have proved themselves far superior.

A movement has mushroomed recently among many major church bodies to try to follow the example, at least partially, of their bustling little brothers.

The key to the new programs is an old idea—the tithe.

"Tithing is a great new rediscovery of this generation of Christians," said Rev. T. K. Thompson, head of the stewardship-benevolence department of the National Council of Churches.

"Virtually all the major denominations have started vigorous tithing programs."

He said federal income tax laws are partially responsible.

The Old Testament injunction that a tenth of what each man earns should be set aside as "holy unto the Lord" has received little attention in most big religious bodies—Catholic, Jewish or Protestant—since the turn of the century.

But many smaller bodies have continued to stress it. The result is the annual per capita contributions by their members far exceeds that of the bigger churches.

Pace-setters are the Free Methodists, averaging $194.79 per member a year; Seventh Day Adventists, $158 per member; Wesleyan Methodist, $142.21; Brethren in Christ, $124.31; Church of the Nazarene, $111.76.

Compare those figures with per capita giving in churches where the tithe has been out of fashion:

Protestant bodies —$34.32 per member a year.

Roman Catholic — officially estimated at $35 a year.

Jewish — about $38 per person (counting four persons per family, only the heads of families being actual members of congregations).

Eyeing this situation, 14 major Protestant denominations within the last few years have launched campaigns to revive the habit of tithing. Another one, the Methodists, largest Protestant church, plans to do so next year.

Among early boosters of the return to tithing among big churches were the Southern Baptists and the Presbyterians of the U. S. (Southern). The Mormon church has a long-standing tithing program, but per capita giving records are unavailable.

Neither Catholic nor Jewish bodies have initiated any special tithing programs by that name, but spokesmen for both said the tithing idea was basic to programs to increase giving.

"Catholic publications now and then have been carrying editorials to strengthen the ideal of tithing," said Monsignor Thomas J. McCarthy, of the National Catholic Welfare Conference.

In Judaism, the word "tithe" isn't generally used in modern congregational parlance, since it specifically applies only to the law governing the Jewish temple of ancient times.

"But the whole spirit of giving more has pervaded the Jewish community in the present day," said Rabbi Joel S. Geffen, director of field activities and community services of the Rabbinical Assembly of America.

The modern income tax, which brings a man face-to-face with his annual church contributions—usually embarrasingly small—doubtless had something to do with the trend, Thompson said, adding:

"A person cannot make out his income tax form every year without facing the question of proportionate giving. The tithe is a good practical program for meeting a perennial problem."

The food value of cabbages is small, apart from their salt and vitamin content, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Although American railroads now make use of some 200,000 miles of telegraph and telephone lines, radio is rapidly coming into use, particularly to communicate with moving trains.

The number of violins made by Stradivarius has been estimated from 1000 to 3000, with experts reporting at least 325 of these as still in existence.

Hal Boyle's Column—

Objections to Getting Year Long Vacation Every 10 Years

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Would you like a job that gave you a full year off, with pay, every 10 years?

A Chicago firm has just put this plan into effect, as an inducement for its employes to stay with it.

At first glance this proposal sounds like the working man's age-old dream—a year-long sabbatical rest from his labor every decade. An employer who made such an offer in the 19th Century would have been hailed by the wage-earners as the Abraham Lincoln of industry. He might also, of course, have been tarred and feathered and ridden out of town on a rail by the other employers.

But the temper of the times has changed. Surprisingly, an impromptu poll I made showed that most workers, from bookkeepers to housewives, had strong personal objections to such a program, at least as it might apply to them.

Four out of five people approached all made the same point:

"The program needs to be turned around. When an organization hires you, why can't it immediately give you a year off with pay, so you will feel rested enough to work 10 years?

"Doesn't that make more sense? Why start a job all tired out? Maybe they think that after you got the year off you wouldn't come back and put in your 10 years. That's life—nobody trusts nobody any more."

Here are a few other typical reactions:

"Suppose I work 9½ years and then marry the boss?" said a pretty stenographer. "I'll be home cooking dinner for the bum the year I'm supposed to have free. That would be just my luck."

"Look, I inherited a little money from an aunt," said a hen-pecked husband. "The only reason I work now is to get away from my wife. You've never heard her, have you? No, of course not. Some guys get all the breaks. You think I want a job where the boss is going to make me stay home every 10 years and listen to her for 365 days? They couldn't pass a law to make me do that."

A traffic cop said:

"If I ever got off my feet for a full year, they'd never be able to get me back on this corner unless they put me on wheels."

And a bookkeeper replied:

"I am getting along fine in my job because nobody knows just how much I do. The truth is I don't do anything. It has taken me years to arrange it. I don't claim my boss is any relation to Albert Einstein, but if I left on a year's vacation it wouldn't take even him more than six months to figure out why there was less confusion in the office."

Several others polled were roughly of the same opinion. It could be summarized, as follows:

"Let's be sensible. Who wants to give an employer a full year to brood over how really vital you are to his personal welfare?"

And this was the attitude of a housewife:

"If wives had to put up with their husbands at home for a full year — even only once every 10 years — it would cause more divorces than all the blondes since drugstores started selling golden hair rinses. Woman's place is in the home, and a man's place is at his job, or at least until he is too old and tired to criticize her housekeeping.

The Chicago firm which started the idea did say its employes, if they didn't want to take the 11th year off, could work it and receive double pay.

The results of my informal poll would indicate that, if this program spreads through industry, that is what most employes would do—but not for the reasons they'd tell the boss.

Wettest Spot Has Drought

CHERRAPUNJI, Eastern India (AP) — This tiny village, the wettest spot in the world, has its own drought problem.

Cherrapunji, with the heaviest known annual rainfall of around 569 inches, sits under an almost constant downpour for seven or eight months of the year. But from November through February there is an acute water scarcity here.

Springs and streams which normally run bankful dry up over the 4,500 - foot high flat rocky plateau on which Cherrapunji is located. Villagers, who through most of the year suffer from an overabundance of water, have to descend hundreds of feet into nearby valleys to find water, then carry it painfully back to their homes atop the plateau overlooking the eastern Pakistan frontier.

A 30-caliber bullet will puncture a three-eighth-inch steel plate, but a square of 1½-inch multiple bullet-resisting glass will stop the same missile.

One thought is that the American Indians donned war paint to terrify their enemies, but the real purpose may have been to camouflage themselves.

Oats Problem

BONN, Germany (AP) — West Germany's agricultural minister, Wilhelm Niklas is trying to reduce the oat crop. Stubborn German farmers keep growing oats while the number of horses diminishes because of farm mechanization.

Niklas says there are now 265,000 tractors, plowing ground that horses used to work. But the farmers, failed to reduce their oat acreage. So Niklas lowered the price as much as 65 marks (about 16 dollars) per ton effective July 1.

The Harris family has been in the registered Hereford business since 1895 . . . farmed the same land for more than a hundred years. They have used their ROTO-BALER four years.

Last year Harris had 1,500 bales that took 5½ inches of measured rain before the bales were picked up. Except for the outside ¼ to ½ inch, the hay was just as green as when it was baled.

More and more good farmers are choosing the ROTO-BALER. Stop in and see it.

Lights for Messina

REGGIO CALABRIA, Italy (AP)—Crafty old Ulysses, who used to loath the area, would find something reassuring these days about the Straits of Messin. Once upon a time Scylla and Charybdis used to hang out here, one on each side.

Modern man is putting something between them, however—a string of electric lights. They will stretch from the mainland city of Reggio, across the two miles of these fabled straits, to the Sicilian city of Messina.

The lights, are only incidental to an ambitious project to carry electric energy produced in southern Italy to power-starved Sicily. Supported by two of Europe's highest towers, the huge cables are being stretched across the straits several hundred feet above the sea.

Lights are placed on the cables at regular intervals so airplanes won't find the straits as menacing as Ulysses did.

Washington College, Chestertown, Md., is the first college named after George Washington and, it is said, the only one so named by his expressed consent.

First Swedish trade unions were organized in the 1870s, but it was not until 1898 that a national group, the Federation of Labor, was formed.
